Ethnic minorities

Undertake regular and comprehensive human rights-based assessments of the situation of ethnic minorities to develop appropriate policies and to ensure that such policies are effective in eliminating any obstacles to the enjoyment by minorities of their rights, particularly in relation to poverty, unemployment and lack of access to education in minority languages

70. The Constitution of Mongolia, Law on Education, Law on Primary and Secondary Education, and Law on Mongolian Language guarantee the right of ethnic minorities to education. Under these laws, the right of ethnic minorities to mother tongue learning and mother tongue-based education is legitimated. The laws also established the duties of the State to provide such opportunities.

71. Particularly, paragraph 1 and Article 8 of the Constitution of Mongolia provides “The Mongolian language is the official language of the State,” and paragraph 2 states “Paragraph (1) shall not affect the right of national minorities of other tongues to use their native languages in education and communication and in the pursuit of cultural, artistic, and scientific activities.”

72. Moreover, Article 5.1.4 of the Law on Education states “... shall all be given equal opportunities of receiving education in their mother tongue” and Article 30.1.12 of the same law legislates “organize works for national minors in learning, inheriting traditional culture and traditions, and communicating in the mother tongue in the school environment”. Additionally, Article 4.1.1 of the Law on Primary and Secondary Education states the concept of primary education shall aim at teaching proficiency in speaking in the mother tongue, understandable expression of thoughts, reading and writing.

73. Article 13.1.4 of the Law on Mongolian Language defines the duties of the state administrative organization in charge of education and science affairs as “to conduct schooling in bilingual programme if the majority of students is from ethnic minority with different language, and to approve the concept of bilingual programme”, and Article 13.1.5 provides “to organize activities to enable ethnic minority to possess education, to inherit their culture and traditions, and to conduct scientific activities in Mongolian and in their mother tongue”.

74. The Working Group³⁴ of the Ministry of Education, Culture, Science and Sports worked in Bayan-Ulgii province from 28 to 31 June 2018 to observe the professional and methodological functions of the Department of Education and Culture of Bayan-Ulgii province, the professional qualifications of the provincial school principals and teachers, and their abilities to conduct classes and courses in Mongolian language. The working group is also tasked to make conclusions and recommendations of follow up activities to improve education quality.

75. The research section on the education of ethnic minority and Mongolian children in overseas was established at the Institute of Education. The functions of the section are assessing the conditions of schooling and education of ethnic minority children, designing education program and curriculum, developing textbooks and learning tools, supporting professional development of and providing methodological support for teachers.

³⁴ Order A/10 of the Minister of Education, Culture, Science and Sports on “Establishment of the Work Group”.

76. The Government is pursuing the policy that ethnic minority children have textbooks in their mother tongue in their primary schools. There are 43³⁵ public and private secondary schools in Bayan-Ulgii province and one school in Hovd soum of Hovd province where children of Kazakh minorities study. The primary school programs in these schools are conducted in their mother tongue.³⁶ The Government had funded the translation and publishing of all textbooks which are used in primary schools elsewhere in the country. The sufficient number of textbooks had been published and provided to the school libraries.

77. The Government is firm on the policy to make the mother tongue textbooks available. "Native language" textbooks of Kazakh language for I, II, III, IV, V, VI, and VII grades had been written and published. The Kazakh schools had been provided the sufficient numbers of textbooks. It is planned to publish and distribute Kazakh language and literature textbooks of VIII grade in the year 2018. National Kazakh minority receives education and makes decisions in their mother tongue on the territory of their residence. However, the children of other ethnic minorities residing in Bayan-Ulgii province do not get sufficient knowledge of dual languages, specifically Mongolian. Due to the language barriers, Khalkh, Uriankhai, Tuva, Durvud, Buriad and other ethnic minority citizens' participation opportunity in decision-making process is limited and are subject to unemployment and poverty.

79. The Group inquired if the additional State funding which is due to be allocated because of the peculiarity and difference of the education plan and program of the region to Bayan-Ulgii province has efficiently been used as designated. However, the Working group was responded that the matter was not reflected in their budget. If the funding would be properly re-allocated, there is potential to improve the dual language programs and prepare teachers and instructors who speaks Mongolian and understands the language and culture of the different ethnic groups.
