9. The 2007 Law on Domestic Violence Prevention and Control has one section (Section 2) on reconciliation of conflicts and disputes among family members. It is stipulated that the family and the family lines are responsible for reconciliation of conflicts, and disputes between family members. At the request of family members, agencies or organizations shall have the responsibility to reconcile conflicts and disputes between persons of their agencies and organizations and the corresponding family members, and in case of necessity, shall coordinate with local agencies and organizations in conducting the reconciliation. The reconciliation team at grassroots level shall conduct reconciliation of conflicts and disputes among family members according to the Law on reconciliation at grassroots level. The People's Committees at the commune, ward and town-level are responsible for coordinating with the Vietnamese Fatherland Front Committees of the same level and their member organizations in guiding, and facilitating grassroots reconciliation organizations in conducting reconciliation of conflicts and disputes among family members.

10. Law on Domestic Violence Prevention and Control in 2007 stipulates that in case of domestic violence, victims have the following rights:

- “a) To request competent agencies, organizations and persons to protect their health, life, dignity, as well as other legitimate rights and interests;
- b) To request competent agencies or persons to apply preventive and/or protection measures to prohibit contact according to the provisions of this Law;
- c) To be provided with medical and/or psychological counselling services;
- d) To be provided with shelter, and to benefit from confidentiality of information on their shelter and other issues in accordance with the provisions of this Law;
- e) Other rights as prescribed by law.”

(Clause 1, Article 5, Law on Domestic Violence Prevention and Control).

11. Victims of domestic violence, or other persons who detect domestic violence, must promptly report to the nearest police office, or People's Committee at the local commune, or head of the community where the violence occurred. Public security agencies, commune-level People's Committees or heads of local communities, when detecting or receiving information on domestic violence, shall promptly handle the case or request competent agencies or persons to handle it; ensure confidentiality of personal records and, in case of necessity, apply measures to protect the persons who detect and report domestic violence (Article 18 of the Law on Domestic Violence Prevention and Control).

12. In all cases, prevention and protection measures shall be promptly applied to protect victims of domestic violence, put an end to domestic violence and minimize the consequences of violent acts. These include:

- Immediate termination of acts of domestic violence;
- Provision of first-aid for domestic violence victims;
- Preventive measures on perpetrators of domestic violence according to the Law on handling of administrative violations or the Law on criminal procedure;
- Prohibition of the perpetrator from approaching the victim, and from committing acts of violence to the victim via telephone, or any other means of communication.

13. In order to protect victims of violence, especially domestic violence, localities in Viet Nam have introduced multiple models to prevent domestic violence such as “Domestic Violence Prevention” Club, and models such as “Emergency Intervention”, “Shelter”, “Reliable Address”, and “Consulting, Communication”.

14. The Prime Minister proclaimed June as National Action Month on Domestic Violence Prevention and Control,⁴ via which launched the domestic violence prevention and control movement.

15. In addition, in order to ensure that women, especially those suffering from violence and discrimination, can receive legal assistance in a timely manner, the Law on Legal Aid 2017 stipulates that victims of domestic violence who suffer from financial hardship are entitled to legal assistance.

Implemented measures pertaining to point b of Recommendation No. 23⁵

16. Article 8 of Law on Election of National Assembly deputies and People's Councils sets the target that at least 35% of the officially listed candidates for the National Assembly and People's Councils shall be women. The Law took effect in 2015; immediately afterwards, the proportion of female candidates after the third round of the 2016–2021 legislature was assessed as highest compared to the recent legislatures, at 38.79%.⁶

17. However, results of the deputies election to the 14th National Assembly and the People's Councils at all levels for 2016–2021 are still far from the plan set out in the National Strategy on Gender Equality for the period 2011–2020, as follows:

- The rate of female deputies elected to the National Assembly XIV is at 26.72%, which is 2.62% higher compared to the previous legislature.
- The rate of female deputies elected to the People's Councils for the 2016–2021 period is at 26.54% (increased by 1.37%) at the provincial level; 27.85%

⁴ According to Decision no. 363/QĐ-TTg on 8 March 2016 of the Government.

⁵ Recommendation No. 23 (b): Consider establishing a quota for female candidates higher than 35% for the election to the National Assembly and the People's Council for 2016–2021 with the aim of achieving the target of 35% for elected female deputies set in the National Strategy on Gender Equality (2011–2020).

⁶ However, there are still 23 provinces which have the rate of National Assembly female deputies below 35%.

(increased by 3.23%) at the district level; and 26.59% (increased by 4.88%) at the commune level.

18. These results show that within this legislature, there was an increase in rate of female deputies elected to the National Assembly and the People's Council compared to the last three legislatures; additionally, this legislature marked an important milestone for Vietnam: for the first time, the National Assembly of Vietnam had a female president. However, the rate of female deputies increased by only around 2%. Besides the provinces with high proportion of National Assembly female deputies such as Bac Kan (66.67%), Bac Giang (62.5%) and Quang Ngai (57.14%), there are 3 provinces (Quang Nam, Tay Ninh, Thua Thien Hue) which do not have any female deputies in the National Assembly.
