Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women (CEDAW)

CONSIDERATION OF REPORTS SUBMITTED BY STATES PARTIES UNDER ARTICLE 18 OF THE CONVENTION

Second Periodic Reports of States parties

Addendum

POLAND
INTRODUCTION

The Government of the Polish People's Republic, as a State party to the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women, hereby submits, in accordance with article 18 of the Convention, its report on the application in legislation and practice of the Convention in the period from 1983 to 1988 with the understanding that it will be complemented for the period from 1988 to the date of receiving information on the time of its examination by the Committee.

The report has been elaborated in accordance with the "General guidelines regarding the form and contents of reports". It refers to aspects not covered by the initial report, taking into account the comments and views expressed by the experts of the Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women.

PART I

1. General aspects

In its initial report the Government described in detail matters recommended by the "General guidelines regarding the form and contents of reports" in items 3 a - e, and namely the political and legal system of the Polish People's Republic, juridical system, access of women to education, work, conditions of family life and women's participation in public life. This information is still valid.

We are presenting below the data concerning changes in demographic structure of Poland in the reporting period as well as information complementing Part I of the initial report of the Government of the Polish People's Republic.

2. Demographic situation of Poland

In Poland there are 19,346 thousand women representing 51.2 per cent of the country's population (37,764 thousand). There are 105 women for each 100 men. 50.5 per cent of the population (ca 62 per cent of women) live in towns.

In 1986 the natural growth of the population was 258,4 thousand persons, of which 132,3 thousand in towns and 126,1 thousand in rural areas. The average number of persons per household was 3.32.

The number of people in the pre-productive age, i.e. under 18 years of age, in 1986 was 11,197 thousand, including 5,466 thousand women, i.e. 48.8 per cent. There were 4,551 thousand persons in the post-productive age, including 3,222 thousand women, i.e. 70.7 per cent.

There were 21,824 thousand persons in the productive age, including 10,560 thousand women, i.e. 48.3 per cent.

In towns there lived 6,817 thousand women in the productive age while those living in the country numbered 3,743 thousand. 77 per cent of the total number of women in the productive age (and 56.5 per cent of married women) were professionally active. Among the women in the productive age - with higher education - 88 per cent were professionally active, with secondary education - 75 per cent, with basic vocational education - 72.3 per cent and with primary education - 74.5 per cent.

3. Legal guarantees of equality of men and women

The principle of equality of men and women is one of the major principles stipulated in the Constitution. According to it, all the citizens of Poland have equal rights irrespective of sex in all the fields of public, political, economic, social and cultural life 7).

The legislator is under obligation to follow the provisions of the Constitution by enacting laws and it is prohibited to issue laws in defiance of the Constitution.

Compliance of legal acts with the Constitution is monitored by the Constitutional Tribunal. It is a new institution established under the constitutional amendment of 26 March 1982. 8)

The Act has been described in the annex to the initial report (item 12 of the annex).

4. Practical implementation of the principle of equality of right for men and women

Political and structural changes which took place in Poland after World War II, industrialisation of the country, the principle of full employment observed for 40 years as well as the constitutional guarantees of equality of rights without distinction to sex in all spheres of life, all this created conditions for the change of the socio-professional position of women in the working environment, in family and society. It also contributed to the change of image of women in the social consciousness and considerable changes of values in the consciousness of women themselves.

7) Constitution of the Polish People’s Republic enacted on 22 July 1952 with further amendments, article 67 and 68;
Essential changes in individual and family features of women are the natural consequence of these transformations. It inter alia concerns the increase in the women's level of education, prolongation of their professional career, decrease in the number of children born, change of attitudes towards professional work in the period of maternity, increase of women's professional and social aspirations.

It especially concerns - beside the financial motives for work - more and more often declared by women non-material motives and the need for recognising their contribution to the national income growth and the country development, through their work in a household.

Education

Social and professional position of women, constantly growing in our country, is justified by their aspirations to acquire education and develop the skills.

In the period from 1979 to 1984 the number of women with secondary and higher education increased from 20.1 to 40.4 per cent of the total female population. At present each tenth woman employed in the socialised economy has higher education.

In 1986 9) women constituted over 51 per cent of the total number of students at universities and other higher schools and almost 55 per cent of the total number of graduates of these schools. They are in majority at the universities (64.3 per cent of students and 68.8 per cent of graduates in 1986), in medical academies (61.5 per cent of students and 65.3 per cent of graduates) and in economic academies (53.7 per cent of students and 64.5 per cent of graduates). At the agricultural higher schools they constitute 41.3 per cent of students and 50 per cent of graduates. Technical studies are relatively least feminised (in 1986 - 17.2 per cent of students and 25.6 per cent of graduates), although here also the increasing trend is noticed \(^\text{10}\).

In 1984 Poland - with women's participation rate of 55.8 per cent at the third level of education (i.e. post-secondary vocational schools as well as universities and other higher schools) was among the leading European countries in this field.

Employment level

High rate of feminisation of education is accompanied by the constant growth of female participation in employment. In 1986 women constituted 45 per cent of the total number of fully employed persons \(^\text{11}\) and almost 77 per cent of the total number of women in the productive age were economically active. The highest professional activity of women is between 30 and 44 years of age. It reaches in average 80.9 per cent of female population in this age group, including 90.5 per cent in agriculture and 78.8 per cent outside agriculture \(^\text{12}\).

The general growth of the employment level of women in Poland was principally influenced by the professional activity of married women.

\(^{10}\) Data: Statistical Yearbook of Poland of 1987, p.473;
\(^{11}\) op.cit.: p.67
\(^{12}\) op.cit.: p.44 (data for 1984)
Between 1950 and 1985 the number of professionally active mothers outside agriculture increased over 10 times. In the structure of working women, married women are at present becoming the prevailing group (75 per cent). The evolution of the employment structure of women determined by the economic needs of the country and of families and expressed by the growing participation of married women, in majority having maternal and family responsibilities, creates the necessity of establishing appropriate institutions and social benefits enabling to women the harmonious combination of family and professional roles.

Socio-professional advancement of women

Growth of women's education and their professional activity are the factors deciding on women's integration in the process of development and creation of new behavioural patterns in the family and social life, based on the principles of partnership and characteristic for the industrialised societies.

Although the model of real equality in practice still meets with barriers both of economic character and in the sphere of social consciousness and customs, nevertheless the historically formed and consolidated stereotypes of women's position in the society and the roles attributed to them gradually disappear, similarly as in many other developed countries.

Pay

The pay level is the proof of appreciation of the position in work. At present, data collected by the Main Statistical Office do not apply the sex criterion in studies on pay received at similar posts. However, studies of the pay distribution in different economy branches, which take this criterion into account (they have been recently carried out in 1985) show the existence of unfavourable for women differences in this field. These disproportions mainly are the effect of inequality of promotion opportunities and not of the phenomenon of lower wages in the non-material sphere, where women prevail.

It should be noted that this unfavourable tendency also concerns these fields or occupations which in the past were well paid but their feminisation caused the decrease in the pay level (e.g. information).

These disproportions are strengthened by still existing in the society (although gradually disappearing) division of roles in a family between men and women. This division of roles is transferred to the sphere of professional activity and on this basis such complex of cultural norms is being institutionalised in which lower pay for women is treated as justified and an unconfirmed conviction exists about lower productivity of women and their engagement in the sphere of family life at the expense of their professional life, unjustified opinion is cultivated that women's pay is of the secondary importance for the family budget, etc. Sometimes women themselves yield to these stereotypes, not strongly enough fighting with them.

Conditions and barriers of advancement

Examining participation of women in the managerial staff, taking into account the process of their professional activation, the level of education and skills, it should be stated that it is the field in which full equality of opportunities for men and women has not yet been achieved. Participation of women in the managerial staff is lower than their participation in the skilled staff and in employment. And the higher the management level, the lower is participation of women. Women constitute ca 35 per cent of the total number of managerial staff, however their participation at the higher posts and in the staff reserve for these posts is about 9 - 10 per cent.

It even concerns branches of economy where women prevail in employment, such as finances and social insurance, where the feminisation rate equals 84 per cent or trade and services (with the feminisation rate of 71.6 per cent), health and social welfare (80.2 per cent).

In industry, where women's participation in employment equals 37 per cent, women constitute 12.4 per cent of the total number of managerial staff and less than 4 per cent of the total number of managers of enterprises.

Existence of barriers in women's advancement is also observed in the sphere of public life. Participation of women at the highest public posts is insufficient. At present a woman is the deputy-speaker of the Seym, three are the members of the Tribunal of State, one is a minister and one is the President of the Social Insurance Institute. A woman has also been nominated to the newly established post of the Spokesman for Citizens' Affair.

Having in mind these unfavourable phenomena, the Government of the Polish People's Republic recommended its Plenipotentiary for Women's Affairs to analyse them and to present results of this analysis together with the proposals of the change of the situation.

Analysis carried out by the Government Plenipotentiary for Women's Affairs shows, that the improvement of situation in the sphere of women advancement to managerial posts requires creation of the coherent system covering all the areas of the socio-economic life and connected with them mechanisms of proposing of candidatures of women to responsible posts.

The basic principle of such a system and its implementation mechanisms should be the real equality of men and women and corresponding to it equal availability of the managerial posts at all the levels.

To ensure the efficiency of this mechanism, the following conditions should be fulfilled:

- reinforcement of the position of women in social and political organisations, i.a. through proposing their candidatures to the highest levels;

- restoration of adequate proportions in the structure of filling managerial posts - corresponding to the skills and employment level of women. It especially concerns the highest levels of management and advancement both on the basis of elections and on the basis of appointment;

- improvement of the staff policy in enterprises, with emphasis laid upon utilisation of systematic and objective evaluation of workers;
- preparation of women for the managerial work, through various forms of education and training in the field of management;

- acceleration of the process of eliminating of barriers still existing in consciousness and in the sphere of culture by dissemination of modern model of a woman in society and family, based on the principles of partnership as well as dissemination of images of women having considerable, often distinguished results in their professional and social activity;

- intensifying of activities of the Government in favour of restoring the balanced market and of development of the social infrastructure, what influences the political and professional activity of women.

5. Protection of women's rights

The initial report on the application of the Convention described in detail the juridical system in Poland, which is of primary importance from the standpoint of the legal protection, and particularly the system of family courts and courts of labour and social insurance. To create further guarantees for the protection of citizens' rights and freedoms, in 1987 the institution of the Spokesman for Citizen's Affairs (Ombudsman) was established.

The Spokesman examines cases connected with protection of citizens' rights and freedoms, to see if the law, the principles of social coexistence or social justice have not been infringed in result of actions of organs, organisations and institutions obliged to observe and implement theses laws.
The Spokesman may examine a case at the request of each citizen. The Act does not provide for any inequalities in appealing to him with regard to sex. The post of a Spokesman is occupied by a woman (professor of law).

The above mentioned institutions are concerned with legal protection of all the citizens, including women.

For the coordination of tasks aiming at ensuring to women equal rights in all spheres of state, political, economic, social and cultural life, as well as improving the conditions of their lives, the Council of Ministers has appointed, by the Resolution No.134/86 of 1 September 1986, the Government Plenipotentiary for Women's Affairs.

In his activities in favour of women the Plenipotentiary co-operates with the state organs, political and social organisations and particularly with the League of Polish Women, National Committee of Women in Cooperatives and the Main Council of Circles of Rural Housewives.

The Council of Ministers has also approved the programme of actions for an improvement of the social and professional status and the living conditions of women which consists of 22 areas of action to be implemented in the years 1987 - 1990. Supreme and local organs of state administration have been made responsible for taking up these actions, while the Government Plenipotentiary is to perform the co-ordinative role.

14) Act of 15 July 1987 respecting the Spokesman of Citizen's Affairs (Dziennik Ustaw of 1987, No.21, Text 123),
These actions are focused upon:

- Implanting into social consciousness as well as in the sphere of socio-professional activities of the principle of the equality of rights of men and women;

- Establishing and effective utilisation of mechanisms aimed at a wider participation of women in the process of development;

- Improvement of working conditions of women and providing them with the possibilities of professional development and social activity, as well as creating for women bringing up their children a choice between professional career and taking personal care of children;

- Improvement of living conditions of women, first of all by sufficient medical care, providing of living facilities to enable them combining of family and professional functions, wider participation in education and culture, as well as by elimination of disproportions in the living conditions between urban and rural areas;

- Strengthening of the educative and social role of the family;

- Closer international co-operation, including an increased participation of women in representing the country abroad, especially in the United Nations system.

The Council of Ministers has imposed on the ministers, central and local organs of state administration an obligation to develop a detailed scheme of implementation of the tasks listed above and to provide the Government Plenipotentiary for Women's Affairs with the annual reports on their implementation.
Each two years the analysis of reports on the implementation of the schemes is elaborated for the Council of Ministers, from the standpoint of their conformity with the Resolution of the Council of Ministers.

Activities of the Plenipotentiary are inspired and supported by the Consultative Group, composed of representatives of the scientific institutions, social and political organisations as well as state administration organs and the women's press.

The analysis of implementation of the programme of activities for further improvement of the socio-professional status of women as well as their living conditions in the years 1987 - 1990, opinions of the Consultative Group and appeals from women themselves are the inspiration to formulate tasks of particular social and moral importance, directly supervised by the Plenipotentiary. In the first period of activity of the Plenipotentiary they were the following:

- influencing the staff policy in view to increase participation of women at the managerial posts in proportion to their education, professional skills and the level of their employment in national economy through formulating and submitting to the Prime Minister of proposals as regards activities aiming at improvement of the situation in this field;

- disseminating of a new model of a family, based on the principles of partnership, as well as the new image of a woman in society through the verification of schoolbooks, influencing the mass media and organisations participating in policy making;
- introduction of new solutions as regards facilities and benefits for women bringing up the disabled children and modification of the scale of these benefits;

- acting in favour of the introduction of flexible working hours what would enable to women bringing up children to combine their family and professional functions;

- acting in favour of further verification of rights and level of benefits for single mothers from the alimony fund;

- acting in favour of development of the sheltered work shops;

- acting in favour of the improvement of the child-care facilities

Besides, the Government Plenipotentiary for Women's Affairs - on the basis of the authorisation of the Council of Ministers - formulates opinions on the draft legal acts from the standpoint of the economic, social and legal interests of women and their families

6. Women organisations

a) The League of Polish Women.

The League of Polish Women, associating ca 600 thousand members, groups both professionally active and non-working women, enabling them to carry out the social activity. The League aims at increasing social and political activity of women and to eliminate barriers in professional advancement of women to improve conditions of their work, protect maternity. In its education and counseling activity the League assists women in harmonious combination of their professional and social roles with their family functions.
This activity covers the economic, legal, pedagogical problems, problems of health education and is carried out in the form of lectures, seminars, schools of "citizen's education", schools of health and schools for mothers as well as the courses of rational management of the household.

The intervention and counseling activity of the League is carried out through the network of socio-legal guidance centres. In 258 such centres functioning at the territory of Poland, 1,277 lawyers of various specialisations work, giving free advice. Each year ca 20 thousand persons come to these centres seeking advice, in majority women. Over one third of all the cases concern shirking of the responsibility of payment of alimony by fathers. Besides, the cases of divorce, cruelty in a family and all kinds of family conflicts should be mentioned.

The League co-operates with the central and local administration organs through participation in elaborating of the legal acts concerning women's issues. Its representatives are members of various consultative organs and groups such as the Legislative Council by the Prime Minister, the Council for Assistance for Young Persons by the Minister of Justice, the Council of Labour Protection by the Main Labour Inspector, the Youth Consultative Group at the Commission of Planning, the Commission for Fighting with Alcoholism by the Minister of Health and Social Welfare or the Consultative Group by the Government Plenipotentiary for Women's Affairs.

Organisation of the Circles of Rural Housewives

Organisation of the Circles of Rural Housewives, associated in the National Federation of Farmers, Agricultural Circles and Agricultural Organisations, groups over 1.2 million of rural women, i.e. ca 50 per cent of the total number of women employed in agriculture aged over 15 years and ca 22 per cent of the total number of women living and working in rural areas.

The organisation co-operates with the central and local administration organs in matters concerning rural women, i.a. pronouncing opinions on the legal acts, participating in elaboration of programmes and guidelines of the state policy. The following programmes may be mentioned here: Programme of development of education in rural areas and holiday recreation for rural children of 1982, Programme of improvement of living conditions in rural areas of 1984, Programme of development of agriculture and food economy up to 1990 (of 1983), Programme of health protection of rural population up to 1990, etc.

Circles of Rural Housewives organise (also in co-operation with the state institutions and social organisations) various kinds of courses for rural women and the whole rural population. Particular attention is focused on the vocational training for women - farmers, providing them with basic agricultural knowledge or complementing this knowledge. Ca 10-15 thousand women participate in such courses annually. Women having the definite vocational preparation, acquired at school or in the extramural system, may participate in the skills development.

Besides, the courses in the field of household management, needlework, housework are very popular. In 1987, 5,440 such courses and 23,620 shows were organised for ca 500 thousand rural women.
Among the other forms of training the following should be mentioned:

- training courses in the field of health education, organised together with the youth organisations and medical services (in subjects: health protection for women and children, aid in emergency, occupational safety and health, diseases characteristic for a given environment, etc.). In 1987 over 22 thousand women participated in 953 schools of health;

- training courses connected with the cultural activity, organised for persons interested in the development of social activity in the field of culture;

- schools of the socio-political education for women in which in 1987 participated over 29 thousand women; mass political training sessions in the Circles in which participated ca 300 thousand women; seminars for the members of the Organisation in which participated over 102 thousand women.

National Committee of Women in Cooperatives

Cooperatives associate ca 6 million women. At present women constitute 67 per cent of new members of cooperatives:

- 162.3 thousand women work in committees of producers and consumers (42.4 per cent of the total number of members of these committees),

- 33.0 thousand women are the members of supervisory boards in cooperatives and their unions (21 per cent of the total number of members),

- 5.0 thousand women are the members of boards of cooperatives, many of them are the chairpersons (13 per cent of members of boards),
- many women occupy managerial posts in economic units and social and educative centres in cooperatives.

Stating that women are well represented in the management of cooperatives we may also say that it is the basis for increasing in future their participation in the socio-political and economic life of the country.

The organisation of women in cooperatives runs various clubs and centres, such as centres "Practical Woman" in towns and "Modern Housewife" in rural areas, which organise courses in the field of cooking, housework, run different artistic and other groups, etc.

PART II.

We present below information on the implementation by Poland of different articles of the Convention in the reporting period.

Article 2

The constitutional principle of equality of all the citizens is embodied in all the legal acts governing internal relations in the State.

In the case of infringement of their rights, citizens have equal access to protection. These matters have been described in detail in the first report on the application of the Convention and in PART I of this Report.

As regards the protection of rights of women, establishment of the institution of the Government Plenipotentiary for Women's Affairs as well as his rights and activity are the proof for taking over of the direct responsibility in this field by the Government.

(see PART I of this Report).

Article 3

The detailed information on measures taken in political, social and cultural life to ensure full development and advancement of women is contained in the further parts of this Report.

Article 4

There is no need to adopt temporary special measures aimed at equalisation of rights of men and women in Poland.

Article 5

The problems of changing of social and cultural patterns of behaviour of men and the stereotype of the role of women indirectly find their place in the general and detailed programme documents in the field of culture.

- In the new version of the Government "Programme of development of the national culture up to 2000" (elaborated in March 1988), among the principles and aims of the cultural policy the guidelines have been determined as regards development and promotion of:

(a) equal access of individuals, groups as well as associations and organisations to culture,

(b) such activities which facilitate the development of a determined type of a human being: modern, capable of selecting adequate values, broad-minded , cultural and social and observing legal and moral standards.

- The programme of activities for implementation of the Government "Programme of preventing social pathology for the years 1986 - 1990", contains i.a. tasks referring to:

  (a) cultural education developing ethical attitudes being in conformity with the socialist principles of social coexistence,

  (b) mobilisation of authors and activists to take the positive(from the standpoint of education) problems and participate in a fight against social pathology,

  (c) constant analysis of the contents of programmes and films, spectacles, books, etc. to eliminate the contents contradictory to the accepted standards.

The problem of partnership of men and women in the social life and in a family is taken into account in Polish education system, starting from the primary school. In lower classes of this school such subjects as Polish language, socio-natural environment, art, work and technics take this issue into account. In higher classes of the primary school special lessons are devoted to the problems of society and special lessons are at the disposal of the tutor.

In schools at the over-primary level, all subjects have programmes taking into account the issues of partnership of men and women.

In all kinds of schools at all the levels there is a special subject called "preparation for the family life" which aims at the development of positive attitudes of children and youth to various spheres of the family life, development of abilities required for their future family roles. The programme is of the interdisciplinary character, containing the elements of psychology, pedagogics, law, sociology, medicine, etc, integrated for the needs of the "family knowledge".

The Government Plenipotentiary for Women's Affairs was the initiator of the verification of the contents of all the schoolbooks from the standpoint of disseminating the partnership of men and women in the social life and in the family. This task has been accepted for implementation by the Ministry of National Education in the years 1987 - 1990 as regards the primary schools and up to 1995 as regards the secondary schools.

Dissemination of principles of partnership in a family and development of the required attitudes in this regard is also one of the most important aims of activity of women's organisations. For this aim these organisation carry out the systematic educative activity.

Article 6

Poland is party to the international Convention for the Suppression of Slave Trade and Exploitation of Prostitution of 1950 as well as to the earlier relevant conventions banning all forms of traffic in women. The provisions of these conventions are fully implemented by the national legislation.

Article 7

From the legal standpoint women in Poland have all the opportunities to participate in political life of the country. The actual extent of their practical participation is illustrated by the following data.
- in the present term of the Seym (1985 - 1989) women are 93 MPs what is 20.2 per cent of the total number of MPs (460) \(^{16}\);

- among the members of the voivodship people's councils women constitute 23.6 per cent, compared to 20.1 per cent in the recent term - and in some voivodship councils they constitute over 30 per cent of the members;

- among the members of the local people's councils women constitute 21.9 per cent, compared with 20.7 per cent in the recent term \(^ {17}\);

- a woman is the deputy speaker of the Seym.

Data concerning participation of women in social and political organisations

Political organisations

- 27.2 per cent of members of the Polish United Workers' Party are women and in the Central Committee of this Party they constitute ca 12 per cent \(^ {19}\);

- 27.7 per cent of members of the United Peasants' Party are women and in the Supreme Committee they constitute ca 13 per cent \(^ {20}\);

- 32.5 per cent of members of the Democratic Party are women and in the Central Committee they constitute ca 6 per cent \(^ {21}\).

In the presidium of the Committee of Auditors two women are vice-presidents. Besides, one woman is the president of one of the commissions of the Alliance. It is the Commission of Science, Education and Technical Progress.

In the framework of the Alliance the Council for Women has been established. The president of this Council (a woman) is also a member of the Executory Committee and Council of the Alliance. The Council for Women meets at its sessions in chosen branches and enterprises in which women are in majority - to get acquainted with their conditions of work.

In 49 voivodship alliances of trade unions 2 women (i.e. 4 per cent) are the presidents (in Radom and Łomża).

In the general number of 134 trade union organisations at the over-enterprise level, women are the presidents in 14 (10.5 per cent).

Workers-self-management 23)

Workers-self-management, being the form of participation of workers in the management of the state enterprise, functions on the basis on the provisions of the Act of 25 September 1981 respecting the state enterprises and the self-management of the crew of the state enterprise.

The main organs of the workers-self-management scheme are the following: general assembly of workers and the workers' council. Statistical data for 1986 (the most recent available) show that the workers-self-management schemes exist in 95 per cent of enterprises. Workers'councils in the state enterprises of the materia sphere have in total 137,367 members, including 27,247 women, i.e. 19.83 per cent.

23) Data of the Ministry of Labour and Social Policy
The above data show that despite the progress observed in this field, participation of women in the decision taking still does not correspond to their participation in the economic and social life of the country.

One of the main causes for such a state of affairs is that women have limited influence and no sufficient promotion in the political parties and for this reason they are not a significant political force.

More detailed information on this subject is contained in PART I of this Report.

Article 8

Although women in Poland have the possibility of representing the Government at the international level, their share in so doing is still not significant enough.

In 1987 in diplomatic and consular offices of the Polish People's Republic 27 women were employed in the total number of 929 permanent employees. No woman occupied the post of an ambassador.

Participation of women in the work of international organisations is also insufficient.

The Government is conscious of the unsatisfactory situation in this field what has been i.a. proved by obliging the Minister of Foreign Affairs to improve the situation. Government Plenipotentiary for Women's Affairs has been made responsible for the supervision of the implementation of this task.

It should be emphasised here that election of Poland to the Commission on the Status of Women in March 1988, and increase in activity of Polish women in UN - connected with this - will contribute to improvement of the situation in this field.

Article 9

Legal situation in this field did not change in the reporting period.

Article 10

The system of education in Poland creates the legal basis for the equal treatment of young people of both sexes. The Act of 15 July 1961 respecting the development of the education system guarantees equal access to schools at the primary and secondary level irrespective of sex. At the same time the Regulation of the Minister of Education of 29 December 1986 (Monitor Polski No.35) respecting the principles of admitting students to higher schools creates equal opportunities in this regard to men and women.

Similarly, the Act respecting higher schooling (Dziennik Ustaw No.42 of 1985, Text 201) provides that on admitting to a higher school the evaluation of knowledge and abilities decides.

Graduates of higher schools receive diplomas which allow them to take up employment according to the completed direction of study.

If it is necessary, men and women have equal opportunities of receiving fellowship or the place in the students' house.

It should be mentioned here that in several directions of studies women prevail. It concerns i.a. medicine, humane studies. Girls also prevail in the general secondary schools - and - what results from it - in postsecondary vocational schools. More detailed information in this regard is contained in PART I of this Report.

In the professional activity of women an important role is played by the education for adults - outside the normal working hours. We mean here both the general secondary schools and vocational schools as well as the network of non-school education. Ca 53 per cent of students are women, for whom certain facilities are offered in admitting to school. And namely they may be acquitted of an obligation of staying in employment when entering the school, for example if they take personal care of their children.

Equal opportunities of participating in sport are offered to men and women i.a. thanks to the compulsory sport lessons in schools of all the levels, equal access to sport clubs and sport equipment. Among the persons who practice sport actively women constitute 17.2 per cent. However in several disciplines women are in majority, e.g.: 24)

- skating - 61.2 per cent
- sport acrobatic - 58.2 per cent
- volley-ball - 37.8 per cent
- track-and-field - 39.5 per cent

24) Statistical Yearbook of Poland of 1987, p. 510
Article 11

In PART I of this Report the information is contained on opportunities of employment and professional advancement of women as well as their pay.

As regards the right of women to social security as well as health protection and safe conditions of work, the information contained in the initial report remains valid. Polish legislation in this field fully implements the provisions of the Convention, guaranteeing to women equal rights to benefits and on the other part offering them determined facilities and preferences justified by the concern for their health and the health of their children (such as the lower retirement age, labour protection for pregnant women).

The right to safe conditions of work is ensured - beside the Labour Code - by the Order of the Council of Ministers of 19 January 1979 respecting the list of jobs prohibited to women. This Order is periodically revised on the basis of results of research studies carried out mainly by the labour medicine institute. Its recent amendment of 5 September 1984, taking into account the most modern achievements of medicine, broadened the list and increased the requirements especially as regards employment of pregnant women, breast-feeding women and women in the productive age. For example the work in conditions of exposure to asbest has been prohibited for all the women below 35 years of age.

Besides, the guidelines and recommendations are being introduced as regards the special kinds of occupational risks. In 1987 - for example - the guidelines of the Centre of Onkology were introduced which take into account occupational safety and health conditions of women in the productive age employed in institutions applying cytostatic medicines.

Pregnant women employed on hard and harmful posts are being transferred to the sheltered work posts. In accordance with the recently carried studies, the number of sheltered work posts equals in Poland to 22,618 and the needs are estimated for 40,000. At the same time we observe the phenomenon of liquidation of such posts by some enterprises. In 1986 the sheltered work posts for women decreased by 1000. For this reason, the Political Bureau of the Central Committee of the Polish United Workers' Party, at its meeting in 1987, recommended the development of such posts.

Although Polish legislation implements in principle the provisions of article 11 of the Convention, however it should be mentioned that there are sometimes lower legal acts which infringe the equal treatment of men and women. As an example we may mention legal provisions governing the rights to the railway benefits for families of workers of the enterprise Polish State Railways (PKP). Families of men - workers were granted the larger scope of benefits than the families of women - workers of this enterprise.

After the intervention of the Government Plenipotentiary for Women's Affairs this rare example of discrimination will have been eliminated as of 1 January 1989.

Article 12

As regards the protection of women's health, the state of legislation and practice has not changed since the date of submitting the initial report. Tasks resulting from the "Report on the state of health and health protection for women and the programme of activities in this field for the years 1976 - 2000" as well as the Government programme of 1986 titled "Health for all in 2000" were successively implemented.

Article 13

The detailed information in this field has been contained in the initial report on the application of the Convention. As regards the changes in the legislation and practice, we wish to inform that in 1988, at the initiative of the Government Plenipotentiary for Women's Affairs, the group of experts was established, composed of the representatives of the Ministry of Justice, Prosecutor General, Social Insurance Institute, courts and social organisations, to elaborate the report on the verification of rights and level of benefits paid from the alimony fund.

Conclusions of this report have been accepted by the concerned ministers and in result the Legislative Group has been established which is to elaborate adequate proposals of changes to be introduced to the legislation.

In 1986 there were 109 thousand persons entitled to benefits from the alimony fund and they received almost 2.4 billion zlotys. 65.3 per cent of this amount came from persons obliged to pay alimonies\textsuperscript{19}, and the rest from the state budget dotation (ca 1.105 million zlotys\textsuperscript{20}).

Article 14

According to the data of the Main Statistical Office women constitute 52 per cent of the total number of employed in the

\textsuperscript{19} Statistical Yearbook of Poland of 1987, p.182
\textsuperscript{20} op.cit.: p. 113
socialised agriculture. Besides, ca 1 million women run farms independently, combining the function of the food producer with the role of a housewife and a mother.

A particular aspect of the progressive feminisation of the profession of a farmer is professional activity of women at the post-productive age. It is the result of the migration of young persons to towns and in effect the lack of successors as well as the common phenomenon of bi-occupationality of men - farmers. Outside agriculture only 4 per cent of women over 60 years of age are professionally active, while in agriculture the proportion is 70.

To eliminate the negative phenomena in Polish agriculture the Council of Ministers approved on 30 March 1984, by the Resolution No.47/84, the programme of improving living conditions in rural areas up to 1990 - obliging the ministers and heads of other central units to implement its tasks and recommending to social and economic organisations carrying out of adequate activities.

Tasks contained in the programme - first of all concern:

- improvement of the health conditions in rural areas, i.a. through the development of health centres for women, children, etc.;
- development of education in kindergartens and schools and increasing participation of farmers in culture and rational recreation;
- increase in the provision of consumers' goods and machines for agriculture i.a. through the development of the network of shops and services;
- improvement of the situation as regards supply of water for rural areas.
Besides, the Resolution No. 134/86 of the Council of Ministers of 1 September 1986 respecting the Government Plenipotentiary for Women's Affairs imposed on ministers and voivods - in the framework of the government programme of activities for further improvement of the socio-occupational status of women and their living conditions in the years 1987-1990 - the comprehensive tasks concerning i.a. rural women (improvement of the social infrastructure, increasing of supply of water, gas, consumers' goods and industrial products for agriculture, improvement of the health care and development of social insurance benefits, elimination of disproportions in working and living conditions of women in rural and urban areas, etc.).

Ministers and voivods elaborated the programmes of implementation of these tasks and they report annually to the Government Plenipotentiary for Women's Affairs on their realisation. On the basis of these reports the Plenipotentiary prepares its reports for the Council of Ministers.

Problems connected with the improvement of living and working conditions of people living in rural areas are also the subject of interest of the organisations of rural women.

Circles of Rural Housewives, in co-operation with youth organisations and the health service organise each year "schools of health" "white Sundays" (when doctors of various specialisations go to villages to receive the patients), lectures on health, mainly for women and girls.

The consistent actions of the whole National Union of Farmers, Agricultural Circles and Organisations, in which the organisation of Circles of Rural Housewives is associated, in the systematic development of convalescent hospitals for farmers and their family members.

Rural organisations also contribute to the development of the sanitary situation in rural areas and environment protection.
Their members are the initiators and participants of voluntary actions in favour of construction and modernisation of health centres, old people houses, shops, sport centres, etc.

Article 15

In this field no changes took place in Polish legislation in the reporting period.

In 1984 there were 1.483 thousand incomplete families in Poland (500 thousand in rural and 983 thousand in urban areas).
They included: 1.242 thousand mothers with children (403 thousand in rural and 839 thousand in urban areas), 153 thousand fathers with children (59 thousand in rural and 94 thousand in urban areas) and 88 thousand of brothers and sisters (38 thousand in rural and 50 thousand in urban areas).
Incomplete families constitute 14.5 per cent of the total number of families (16.6 per cent in rural and 15.8 per cent in urban areas\textsuperscript{21}). In the recent 15 years the growing trend has been observed.

In Polish conditions no discrimination against such families is observed. However, it is evident that their functioning is more complicated, particularly when there are young children.

For this reason women organisations render assistance to such families in their everyday life, contribute to establishment of legal solutions in their favour, render them the financial assistance from their own funds and recommend rendering them such assistance from the local funds as well as from the fund of the Polish Committee of Social Assistance.

In accordance with the request i.a. of the National Council of the Circles of Rural Housewives, since July 1986 the family allowance for farmers' children has been granted. It is a considerable financial assistance for incomplete families and the poorest families. 60,332 rural families receive this allowance for 195,437 children (in 1987 at the amount of 1.630 million zlotys). Family allowances are payable from the local funds. At the request of the Circles of Rural Housewives, 334 localities, in which expenditures for the allowances exceeded 50 per cent of the local funds, were granted the dotation from the State budget amounting to 503 million zlotys (totally)\textsuperscript{22}).

\textsuperscript{22)} Data of the National Council of the Circles of Rural Housewives Circles of Rural Housewives keep in touch with orphan children, co-operate with Houses of a Child, organise collection of money and work out their own financial means to assist orphan children in receiving their own accommodation.

The most difficult problem for single mothers is the legal situation of their families and they often seek the advice in these matters. In accordance with the civil law the League of Polish Women is entitled to participate in the civil proceeding in cases concerning alimonies, determination of the fatherhood, fostering a child and in cases in which this participation is justified by the protection of the interest of a family and a child. Representatives of the League may bring an action in the civil process and take a part in such a process as a plenipotentiary.

As regards the criminal process, representatives of the League may participate in it if one of the members of the organisation or a young and helpless woman is a part to the process.

Representatives of the League most often assist women in cases concerning alimonies.
