I. Introduction

1. On 31 August 2016, the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities issued its concluding observations and recommendations with regard to the initial report of Guatemala, stating in paragraph 78: “The Committee requests the State party to provide, within 12 months and in accordance with article 35 (2) of the Convention, information in writing on the measures taken to implement the Committee’s recommendations as set forth in paragraphs 12 and 54.” Accordingly, the National Council for Persons with Disabilities hereby submits information on the progress made in respect of the recommendations set forth in those paragraphs, in compliance with Government Order No. 78-2009, which provides: “The National Council for Persons with Disabilities is hereby designated the governmental body responsible for matters relating to compliance with and implementation of the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities and for submitting the reports called for in that Convention.”

II. Follow-up information (CRPD/C/GTM/CO/1)

2. The measures taken to act on the recommendations made in paragraphs 12 and 54 of the concluding observations are described below.

A. Follow-up information relating to the recommendations made in paragraph 12 of the concluding observations

3. The following information relates to the process of consultation and inter-institutional coordination intended to expedite the adoption of bill No. 5125.

4. The process of harmonizing national disability legislation with the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities began after the ratification of the Convention and the Optional Protocol through Congressional Decree No. 59-2008 and the completion of various analyses by Guatemalan organizations of persons with disabilities.

5. In 2012, the amendment to Decree No. 135-96 was initiated on the basis of work undertaken by civil society in coordination with the Congressional Health and Public Assistance Committee, which gave a high-level congressional commission of representatives of State bodies and civil society organizations a mandate to make proposals to align the Decree with the Convention. The joint work of civil society, the National Council for Persons with Disabilities and advisers from the Congressional Health Committee resulted in the drafting of bill No. 4907, which was endorsed in eight regional workshops that were organized by the Council and held throughout Guatemala. Bill No. 4907 was subsequently used as a basis for the preparation of bill No. 5125.

6. In 2013, the Council’s governing board organized a consultation on the amendment to Decree No. 135-96 and later consulted its member organizations and other organizations, thereby facilitating an in-depth analysis of civil society organizations’ varying positions on the amendment.

7. As a result, an interdisciplinary team was established, and in December 2015 the Guatemalan Commission for Citizen Oversight of Disability Initiatives and the Association for Legislative Development and Democracy presented a draft proposal on the content of bill No. 5125. This work led to the establishment in 2016 of a team of experts on disability, the human rights of persons with disabilities and legislative techniques and practices, which prepared the current version of the bill.

8. To secure the endorsement of organizations of persons with disabilities and State bodies, a road map was designed for a national consultation on the bill prepared by the Guatemalan Commission for Citizen Oversight of Disability Initiatives, the National Council for Persons with Disabilities and the National Network for Persons with Disabilities. The consultation process was supported by a team of advisers from the Congressional Committee on Disability Affairs and culminated in the systematic compilation of the results of experiences from every region in Guatemala.
9. On 23 May 2016, the bill was presented to the Chair of the Committee on Disability Affairs in the Chamber of the People of the Congress of the Republic. At that meeting, representatives of the National Council for Persons with Disabilities stressed that the institutional part of the bill did not reflect the outcome of the national consultation process. In the next step of the legislative process, the bill was submitted to the Legislation Directorate of the Congress on 2 August 2016 and was given the number 5125. The bill has now been approved on third reading. The adoption, article by article, of the final wording is pending. The bill has been before Congress for more than a year, and some progress has been made, but it has not yet become law.

10. In accordance with its mandate, the National Council for Persons with Disabilities decided to carry out a second national consultation in order to present the bill in the complete form in which it was being considered by Congress and to highlight the proposed structure of the Council as provided for in the bill. At the same time, five thematic working groups were set up for subject-matter experts to review each chapter of the bill. This new process resulted in a new proposal that incorporated all the contributions made during the second consultation and in the working groups. This proposal involves a new structure in which pride of place in the bill is given to fundamental rights. The section relating to institutions follows, and the amendments to the various ordinary laws appear last.

11. In 2017, a new expert committee, comprising representatives of civil society, government bodies and the legislature, was set up to work on the latest proposed amendments to the bill. The Members of Congress who had convened the expert committee included two items that were not agreed to by the committee: (1) a decrease of approximately 96 per cent in the budget of the National Council for Persons with Disabilities and (2) the elimination of the disability allowance. The Council’s governing board sent a letter to Congress expressing its disapproval, since the proposed amendments included aspects that had not been agreed upon or addressed in the working groups. In June, July and August 2017, the governing board held consultations with member organizations of the Council and other organizations on the amendments to bill No. 5125 in order to raise awareness of these proposals on which there was no consensus. There was countrywide support for the consultations, which were held in all 22 departmental capitals. The recommendations made by persons with disabilities can be summarized as follows:

   • The National Council for Persons with Disabilities should be strengthened, as initially proposed, and it should comprise representatives of the three branches of government and of civil society

   • The presidential secretariat for disability affairs should not be established, because it would exist to support the work of the President and would have limited executive powers, as indicated in article 8 of the Act on the Executive Branch, and because it would not facilitate participation by civil society

   • There should be a monthly allowance for persons with disabilities living in poverty or extreme poverty

12. The next step towards the adoption of the bill is to ensure its passage through the committees of Congress, a step that will allow advocacy work, a bill on which there is consensus and, ultimately, the participation of all people with disabilities in social, political and legal life.

13. The greatest challenge to the adoption of a framework law on disability in Guatemala is to make persons with disabilities more visible to the State as holders of rights who, for want of opportunities for personal, social and community development, face obstacles to active participation in society.

B. Follow-up information relating to the recommendations made in paragraph 54 of the concluding observations

14. A committee composed of representatives of the Presidential Commission for the Coordination of Human Rights Policy, the Office of the Human Rights Advocate, the Ministry of Health and Social Welfare, the Counsel General’s Office, and the judicial authorities was set up to prepare a bill on mental health care, which is currently in the drafting process. The Ministry of Health, as represented by the Federico Mora National Mental Health Hospital, is the institution with the strongest commitment to the adoption of this bill on an appropriate approach to mental health in Guatemala.

15. A community mental health commission, coordinated by the Mental Health Programme of the Ministry of Health, organizes community-based mental health care as a means of preventing the institutionalization of persons with mental disabilities.

16. The Social Welfare Secretariat has a transformation plan. With the support of the United States Agency for International Development and the United Nations Children’s Fund (UNICEF), consultations are currently being carried out to design a stronger institution that offers adequate options for the care of children and adolescents with disabilities and that, by operating a social protection system, empowers families and prevents the institutionalization of children and adolescents with disabilities. There is also a proposal to strengthen the family-based care system by establishing a network of professional foster families that can take in children and adolescents with disabilities who have been separated from their families; in such cases, the State must prioritize the return of the children and adolescents to their families or other relatives. These proposals are currently being formulated by the Social Welfare Secretariat, which is receiving support from the United Nations.

17. The National Adoption Council is seeking to expedite the judicial process whereby judges rule on whether a child or adolescent with disabilities can be put up for adoption. Work is under way on a proposal for an inter-institutional agreement between the National Adoption Council and the National Council for Persons with Disabilities with a view to providing satisfactory information on disability in training workshops for families interested in adopting and thus to encouraging the adoption of children and adolescents with disabilities. There is also a proposal for a national campaign to combat prejudices surrounding the adoption of children and adolescents with disabilities.

18. One of the challenges to implementing the Convention and acting on the recommendations made in the concluding observations is to take local measures in all parts of the country with the effective support and commitment of the State.

Progress made with regard to the concluding observations and recommendations

19. Through the National Council for Persons with Disabilities, Guatemala reconvened an expert committee comprising representatives of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, the Presidential Human Rights Commission, the Planning and Programming Secretariat of the Office of the President, the Presidential Secretariat for Women, the Congressional Committee on Disability Affairs and the National Council for Persons with Disabilities to follow up on the recommendations of the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities.
