Introduction

1. Montenegro acceded to the CEDAW Convention as a part of the succession process.
2. The deadline for submitting Report (Under the Article 18 of the CEDAW Convention) was 23 October 2007, that is a year after the Convention entered into force in relation to Montenegro.
3. The Initial Report was adopted by the Government of Montenegro in February 2010, and forwarded to the CEDAW Committee in May 2010.
4. The Committee considered the initial report of Montenegro (CEDAW/C/MNE/1) at its 1002nd and 1003rd meetings on 6 October 2011 (CEDAW/C/SR.1002 and 1003).
5. The Committee expressed its appreciation to Montenegro for its initial report and also welcomed the adoption, since the entry into force of the Convention for the State party, of several legislative measures aimed at eliminating discrimination against women, as well as the establishment of various institutional mechanisms and policies for advancing women's rights.
6. The Committee reminded of the obligation of Montenegro to continuously and systematically apply all the provisions of the Convention. Bearing in mind that in certain areas no results have been achieved, the Committee in its stated concluding remarks gave recommendations.
7. The Committee requested Montenegro to provide, within two years, written information on the steps undertaken to implement the recommendations contained in paragraphs 19 and 23, which refer to violence against women and participation in political and public life.
8. The Ministry for Human and Minority Rights, in cooperation with the sectors in charge prepared the responses to these recommendations.
9. In December 2014, the Rapporteur for Follow-up on Concluding Observations of the CEDAW Committee, Ms. Barbara Bailey, sent the comments to the report that Montenegro submitted in 2014, and in it she provided additional recommendations in relation to paragraphs 19 and 23.
10. In accordance with the recommendation of CEDAW Committee, the concluding observations of the Committee were sent to all the relevant ministries and Government authorities, the Parliament of Montenegro, as well as judiciary, in order to ensure their full implementation.
11. Following the guidelines of the CEDAW Committee, the periodic report adheres to the envisaged form and content of a report. It contains introduction, written information on the steps undertaken to implement the recommendations contained in Concluding Observations of the CEDAW Committee from 2011, including additional recommendations for the paragraphs 19 and 23 received in 2014, as well as the report on the implementation of the articles of the Convention and annexes.
12. The process of drafting the II Periodic Report was coordinated by the Ministry of Human and Minority Rights, which formed the working group consisting of the representatives of the: Committee for Gender Equality of the Parliament, Ministry for Human and Minority Rights, Ministry of Justice, Ministry of Foreign Affairs and European Integrations, Ministry of Education, Ministry of Health, Ministry of Labour and Social Welfare, Ministry of Interior, Ministry of Economy, Ministry of Defence, Police Directorate, Supreme Court, Supreme State Prosecutor's office, Protector of Human Rights and Freedoms, Office for Fighting Trafficking in Human Beings, as well as an independent gender expert.

13. Since no NGOs applied to participate in the working group through the Public Call, report was forwarded to NGOs and their responses are included in the II Periodic Report.

14. II Periodic report was adopted by the Government of Montenegro.

Part I

Written information on the steps undertaken to implement the recommendations contained in Concluding Observations from 2011, including additional recommendations for the paragraphs 19 and 23 from 2014

Key recommendations:

15. While reaffirming that the Government has the primary responsibility and is particularly accountable for the full implementation of the obligations of the State party under the Convention, the Committee stresses that the Convention is binding on all branches of the State apparatus. It invites the State party to encourage its Parliament, in line with its procedures, where appropriate, to take the necessary steps with regard to the implementation of the present concluding observations and the State party's next reporting process under the Convention.

16. As of 2012, the Committee for Gender Equality of the Parliament of Montenegro has been organizing a session on the occasion of the 8th March, International Women's day, under the name Women Parliament, with the aim to promote women human rights in Montenegro.

17. From 2013 to 2015 the Committee organized a number of thematic sessions with the aim to raise awareness about women rights, exchange opinion on improving the legal solution for quota for less represented sex in the Electoral law, and finding mechanisms which would make them efficient, to consider the issues of political participation of women in the process of EU accession, women networking in political parties, the status of women with disabilities, women in rural areas and their political and economic empowerment, to discuss about RE women and assessing how public policies contribute to improving their position, and identifying and including all the relevant stakeholders in finding the solution to fight forced marriages.

18. The Committee organized the seminar for members of six parliamentary committees with the aim of higher consideration of the gender aspect through the work of the Parliament.

19. In 2013/2014, the Committee conducted the "Second survey on the level of knowing and applying the Law on Gender Equality in Montenegrin institutions", which covered 68 institutions and parliamentary parties. In relation to the survey conducted in 2010, the number of respondents who listed one document which regulates gender equality issue rose by 23 per cent, the number of those who listed two documents rose by 9 per cent, and the same percentage applies to the number of those who listed three documents. The study identified the areas from the sphere of political participation where the smallest improvement has been made towards achieving gender equality, and where the state mostly lacks instruments for realizing its Constitutional obligation to run the policy of equal opportunity. This study led to the process of preparing the amendments to the Law on Gender Equality which was adopted by the Parliament of Montenegro in June 2015.

20. In April 2015, the Parliament of Montenegro and the Committee for Gender Equality, in cooperation with the OSCE Mission to Montenegro organized the 17th Cetinje Parliamentary Forum with the topic of “Human rights and gender equality in the sector of security and defence”. The forum discussed the participation of women in public and political life, and stated that Montenegro takes a solid stand with regards to gender equality, since the percentage of women in the Army is 8 per cent, having in mind that certain developed countries have lower percentage, and in the USA the percentage is circa 15 per cent.

21. In May 2015, the Ministry for Human and Minority Rights, in cooperation with the NATO Communication team, organized conference “Women, peace and security — the policy of gender equality in the process of European and NATO integrations”, where the Permanent NATO Representative for Women, Peace and Security took part.

Visibility of the Convention, the Optional Protocol and the Committee’s general recommendations

Recommendation in paragraph 9(a) of the previous concluding observations (CEDAW/C/MNE/CO/1)

22. The Convention principles have been included in the relevant laws and the institutional framework. In the period from submitting the Initial Report the amendments have been adopted to the: Law on Anti-discrimination (2014), Law on Protector of Human Rights and Freedoms of Montenegro (2014) and the Law on Gender Equality (2015). The new Law on Prohibition of Discrimination against People with Disabilities was adopted (2015). This legislative framework determines stronger protection against all the forms of discrimination, introduces criminal provisions, and induces greater authority to the institution Protector of Human Rights and Freedoms, as described under paragraph 13 in this document.

Recommendation in paragraph 9(b)

23. The protection of women and the application of the CEDAW Convention has been the integral part of the trainings conducted by the Judicial Training Centre. From 2011, 10 trainings were organized, with the following topics:

1. Gender equality — terminology and theory — 5 trainings.
2. Prohibition of gender-based discrimination — international standards.
3. Drafting the Commentary on the Law on Protection from Violence in Family.

4. Improving the system of institutional support to victims of violence in family through activities of UNDP.

5. Protection of a child victim/witness of violence in family in judicial proceedings.

6. Violence in family with the accent on protection of child victim/witness of family violence.

Recommendation in paragraph 9(c)

24. The Ministry for Human and Minority Rights continuously, through all its activities including trainings, campaigns, presentations and publications promote the principles of the CEDAW and Optional Protocol, which are uploaded on the official website of the Ministry. On the trainings CEDAW has priority in presentation.

25. The Ministry regularly conducts campaigns such as “16 days of activism against violence over women”, “Rural women, active women”, “Find the time to be a dad” etc. During 2014 the Ministry organized the campaign "I support, respect, protect and advocate a HUMAN". The campaign was preceded by a study on public perceptions and attitudes on discrimination in 2013, which had shown that women are the 4th most discriminated group. Compared with the study conducted in 2011, the percentage lowered by 3 per cent, which presents a symbolic trend of decreasing the discrimination against women. In 2015 the Ministry initiated campaign under the slogan “Respect difference! Reject discrimination! Accept a HUMAN!”.

National Action Plan

Recommendation in paragraph 11

26. Realization of recommendations of the Committee is an integral part of the activities within the NAP for Achievement of Gender Equality. The NAP has been brought for the period of 4 years (2013-2017), and the areas are defined in accordance with the Beijing Declaration and Platform for Action. Out of 12 critical areas from the Beijing Platform, Montenegro opted for nine areas: Improving human rights of women and gender equality; Gender sensitive education and upbringing; Gender equality in economy; Gender sensitive health protection; Gender based violence; Media and culture; Equality in the process of decision-making in political and public life; International politics and cooperation; and Institutional mechanisms for application of gender equality. This document was based on the context of Montenegrin accession to the EU, the recommendations of the CEDAW Committee, and national priorities in the domain of gender equality policies. The Government adopts annual reports on implementation of this Action Plan.

27. During 2013 the Commission for monitoring of the implementation of this Action Plan was formed. It consists of members of relevant institutions and 2 representatives of NGOs, and it holds meetings regularly.

Legal complaint mechanisms

Recommendation in paragraph 13(a)

28. In 2014 the Law on Amendments to the Law on Protector of Human Rights and Freedoms of Montenegro was adopted. In the meantime the decision was brought which stipulates that the Protector can have 4 deputies. The Law on Amendments to the Law on Gender Equality was adopted in 2015 in the Parliament of Montenegro. It stipulates that the matters of direct and indirect gender-based discrimination (besides all the forms of discrimination), within the scope of its authorities is dealt by the Protector, and that the application-based proceedings in the cases of gender-based discrimination are transferred from the authority of the Ministry for Human and Minority Rights to the authority of this institution.

29. The internal act of the Protector systematizes the fourth basic group of jobs- Institutional mechanism for the protection from discrimination, minority rights and gender equality, within the scope of which jobs of protecting human rights and freedoms are performed in the following areas: protection from discrimination, the rights of members of minority nationalities and other minority national communities, the rights of the elderly, religious rights, the rights of persons with disabilities, gender equality (including protection from violence in family from April 2015), gender identity and sexual orientation and other related areas. Human resources have been strengthened, since in total 6 positions have been systematized, and three positions have been filled so far.

30. In 2014 the Parliament of Montenegro conducted the selection of one Deputy Protector for this area, who assumed the position in January 2015, when another servant was employed — Advisor for anti-discrimination. In September 2015 one more Advisor was employed (in total 4 advisors employed), while in 2016 it is planned to fill 2 more positions of public servants.

Recommendation in paragraph 13(b)

31. The Law on Amendments to the Law on Protector of Human Rights and Freedoms of Montenegro advances the financial autonomy and independence of this institution through granting the Protector with the authority to dispose of the funds earmarked for them through the Law on the Budget. Deciding on the dynamics of spending the funds of the Protector through the budget year is still, in the authority of the Ministry of Finance.

32. Finances for the work of the Protector are ensured through the budget of Montenegro. On average 80-85 per cent of the annual budget of the Protector are used for functioning of the institution. In the overall model of financing of the institution there is no separate structure of the revenue and expenses of the anti-discrimination sector, or the section which deals with gender equality.

33. The initial act for the accreditation of the institution of Protector to the International Coordinating Committee of National Human Rights Institutions (ICC) was submitted on 23 June 2015.

Recommendation in paragraph 13(c)

34. In the period 2011-2015 the institution of Protector received 21 complaints referring to gender-based discrimination.

35. During 2011 two complaints were submitted. In one case the Protector did not determine breach of right, while the second complaint was transferred to 2012, when the Protector determined breach of right and formed the opinion with the recommendation. The recommendation was brought and acted upon in 2012.

36. In 2012 the Protector had 12 complaints referring to gender-based discrimination. In one complaint the Protector determined the violation of a right and it indicated to the authority in question that it should undertake certain appropriate measures in order to respect gender equality in accordance with the national legislation and international law. In three cases the Protector did not determine violation of the right which was the subject of complaints. In three cases the Protector discontinued the proceedings due to the initiation of court proceedings after filing in the complaints. In four cases the Protector discontinued the proceeding since the submitters did not supplement the complaints in the envisaged period, or after it. In one case, the submitter was advised to use other legal means.

37. In 2013, two complaints for gender-based discrimination were submitted to the Protector, and one complaint was prepared upon its own initiative, which makes it three complaints during the year. In one case the Protector removed the breach of right which was the subject of the complaint. In the second case the Protector did not determine violation of rights, while in the third complaint which was prepared upon its own initiative, the breach of right was eliminated during the proceeding.

38. During 2014 three complaints for gender-based discrimination were submitted to the Protector. In one case no violation of right was determined, and in the second case the submitter of complaint was instructed to use other legal means. In the third complaint, the submitter of complaint, after filing the complaint with the Protector initiated the court proceeding, and hence the proceeding based on that complaint was discontinued.

39. In 2015 the Protector received one complaint for gender-based discrimination, and that proceeding is still ongoing. The reported discrimination mostly referred to the area of labour and employment, violence in family, education, and the most frequent form of the breach of anti-discrimination principles was mobbing.

40. Legal changes from 2014 remove the mobbing from the list of special forms of discrimination, and at the same time the proceeding for protection from mobbing has been defined in the special Law on Prohibition of Harassment at Work.

41. The Protector is of the opinion that this small number of complaint could be (but not necessarily) the result of the fact that in the period (2011-2015) there were formally two legal means for protection from gender-based discrimination, since by the time the amendments to the Law on Gender Equality were brought, the application indicating to direct or indirect gender-based discrimination had been submitted to the Ministry of Human and Minority Rights.

42. In the same time, The Law on Prohibition of Discrimination did not contain explicit provision on gender-based discrimination, but in the wider context the provision on prohibition of discrimination based on gender identity. At the Initiative of the Protector, this legal provision was erased by the novelties of the Gender Equality Law, which were adopted in June 2015. The application-based proceeding was removed from the Gender Equality Law, and this authority is completely transferred to the Protector, in the appeal proceedings which are submitted to this institution pursuant to the Law on Prohibition of Discrimination and the Law on Protector of Human Rights and Freedoms of Montenegro.

National machinery for the advancement of women

Recommendation in paragraph 15(a)

43. Strengthening of the capacities of the Department for Gender Equality was in the focus of the expert mission on strengthening gender equality institutional mechanisms, which was organized within TAIEX programme of the European Commission, in October 2014. The expert mission recommended to establish the National Council and to work on improving the administrative capacities of the Department. In the Programme of Implementation of the NAP for 2015-2016, it is planned to set up the National Council for monitoring the implementation of gender equality policies, and to employ one more person in the Department by the end of 2017. Currently there are three persons working in the Department (The Head and two advisors).

Recommendation in paragraph 15(b)

44. The Ministry for Human and Minority Rights, the OSCE Mission to Montenegro, and local municipalities continuously implement activities for advancing gender equality policies at the local level. Some of the results are:

- 20 Memorandums of understanding with 20 municipalities, with the plan to sign them with the remaining 3 municipalities in Montenegro by the end of 2015;
- Appointing Coordinators for gender equality in 20 municipalities;
- Adopting Decisions on Gender Equality in 12 municipalities;
- In 11 municipalities Councils for Gender Equality have been formed;
- In 5 municipalities Offices for Gender Equality were established so far;
- In 9 municipalities Local Action Plans have been adopted;
- In the budgets for 2014, 6 municipalities planned targeted funds for the implementation of activities from local action plans. Other municipalities have also regular budgetary funds for the activities from the scope of gender equality, but the progress is seen in the fact that in these 6 municipalities there is a separate budget line. It is expected that this trend will continue, because the Government Conclusion stipulates that all the institutions have to plan budget for the activities from the NAP for Gender Equality (or local action plans where applicable), within regular budgetary framework.

Recommendation in paragraph 15(c)

45. Cooperation with NGOs is continuous, and meetings are held on a regular basis. At least once a year Forum for dialogue with NGOs is organized, where topics of common interest are discussed. The activities are also conducted through joint campaigns, trainings, research, and implementation of projects.

46. Women NGOs are the members of working groups for development of laws and strategies. They are also the members of the Commissions for monitoring NAP — (2 representatives). The state finances NGO, among other ways, through the Open call for disbursement of National lottery funds, and at the level of local municipalities. An example of good cooperation is conducting of the campaign “16 days of activism against violence against women”. In 2014, the campaign was organized with NGO “Centre for Women’s rights”.

47. During 2014 and 2015, the Ministry for Human and Minority Rights in cooperation with NGO “SOS hotline for women and children victims of violence” implemented the project “Establishing efficient system of prevention and protection of children and youth from violence in family through educational institutions”, financed by the Embassy of Norway, within which a “Handbook for the staff of educational institutions on action prevention and protection of children and youth from violence in family” was printed.

In June 2015 Ministry for Human and Minority Rights signed MoU with nine NGOs which run support services for women and children victims of violence in family.

48. The Law on Gender Equality stipulates that special affirmative measures for ensuring gender equality can be undertaken in all the areas of social life where there is perceived unequal treatment of women and men.

49. In 2014 the Ministry for Human and Minority Rights signed a MoU with the Employers’ Union, with the aim of respecting and promoting gender equality in all the areas of entrepreneurship and in employer-employee relations. 50. In 2015 the Strategy for Development of Women Entrepreneurship was adopted.

51. In 2013 a Handbook for teachers of the subject “Healthy life styles” was prepared, where gender equality issue is covered. In 2013 two trainings for 40 teachers of civic education on the topic of gender equality were organized, and during 2014 and 2015 this training was attended by circa 130 of them.

52. There is an elective course Civic education in high school which treats gender equality, and in school year 2012/2013, this course was chosen by 2778 students.

39 workshops on early child development and 41 workshops on developing literacy skills were organized.

Recommendation in paragraph 17(b)

55. National legislation and strategic documents oblige mass communication media to avoid gender stereotypes and gender discrimination and to actively contribute to gender equality policies. Such an obligation of Montenegrin media originates from the Constitution of Montenegro, the Gender Equality Law, NAP for Gender Equality 2013-2017, the Law on Media, the Law on Radio-diffusion, the Law on Public Radio-Diffusion Services of Montenegro, and the Code of journalists of Montenegro.

56. The Department for Gender Equality in 2013/2014 published 2 publications: “The Register of professions and titles of women” and “Monitoring — gender sensitivity of Montenegrin media”.

57. In 2013 two seminars for the staff of educational institutions were organized, with the topics: “The culture of Human Rights” and “The pass to democracy” — support to teachers in preparing the students for active citizenship.

61. The Committee for Gender Equality of the Parliament of Montenegro, the Ministry for Human and Minority Rights, the Ministry of Defence, the Military, and the NATO Coordination Team continuously organize conferences with the topic of the position of women in armed forces and implementation of Resolution 1325. The publication “Position of Women in Armed Forces of the Western Balkans” was prepared with the financial support of UNDP and SEESAC, and it was presented at the session of the Committee for Gender Equality in 2014.

Recommendation in paragraph 17(c)

62. In 2012 the Media Council for self-regulation was established as an independent self-regulatory body which monitors the work of printed, electronic and online media.

63. “Gender sensitization of Montenegrin media — A step forward” project was implemented with the support of the OSCE Mission to Montenegro and the Department for Gender Equality, in the period July-December 2013, and its aim was to advance media policies and practice related to implementation of gender equality policies and exercise of women human rights.

64. Legal and strategic documents have been adopted which oblige the media to respect women human rights and promote gender equality policies. The Law amending the Law on Gender Equality in 2015 introduces two provisions for which sanctions are prescribed, and they refer to the use of gender sensitive language and necessary trainings on gender equality for all the employees, including the media.

65. In June 2011 the representatives of 5 NGO and the representatives of the Ministry of Culture signed the Memorandum of Cooperation. The Memorandum was later signed by the Committee for Gender Equality of the Parliament of Montenegro. 66. Gender sensitization of Montenegrin media has been recognized in the NAP for Gender Equality (Chapter 6. Media and Culture), in terms of defining their role in implementing gender sensitive policies, as well as the necessity of undertaking measures aimed at ensuring more proactive role of the media in implementation of the standards of gender-correct media reporting.

Violence against women

Recommendation in paragraph 19(a)

67. Since adopting the Law on Protection from Violence in Family, the number of reported cases of violence in family and violence against women has been increasing, which indicates that the Law is implemented in practice, with raised awareness of the importance of reporting. The data from the Misdemeanour Panel and the Supreme Court for 2014 show the increase in the number of processed and solved cases.

68. The Police Directorate gathers the data on cases of violence in family based on the data of security departments. The data are gathered on: the number of criminal acts, victim and perpetrator of a criminal act, marital status, or the relation between the victim and the perpetrator, professional profile, social status, whether the perpetrators are recidivists, drug users, alcoholics, what the pronounced protective measures are etc. By the end of 2015 the Strategy on Protection from Violence in Family should be adopted.

69. Relevant statistical data is provided in the Annex I.

Recommendation in paragraph 19(b)

70. Pursuant to the Law on Protection from Violence in Family, the Ministry of Interior brought the Rulebook on closer content and appearance of forms for restraining orders or prohibition of coming back to apartments or other housing space, in 2012, which describes the closer content and appearance of forms for restraining order or prohibition of coming back to apartments or other housing space to a perpetrator of violence, with the set boundaries of the area where the perpetrator is not allowed to move, stay or approach the victim as a precondition of the victim's protection, as well as the obligation of a perpetrator to submit to the police officers the keys of the apartment or other place of residence with the aim to ensure victim's safety.

71. The Ministry also brought the Rulebook on the way of execution of protective measures of eviction from apartment, restraining order and prohibition of harassment and stalking on victims in 2014. The Rulebook sets the measures, actions and authorities to be applied by the police officers in conducting the restraining orders, protective measure of prohibition of harassment or of the person exposed to violence, as well as protective measures of eviction from apartment or other joint housing space. Based on the performed risk assessment of the victim it is stipulated to bring about a plan of execution of protective measures, as well as the obligation to file a report on the execution of protective measures by a police officer who is in charge of conducting protective measures.

72. The Rulebook on conducting a protective measure of compulsory psychosocial treatment of a perpetrator was also brought in 2013.

73. When it comes to protective measures with criminal acts, the Amendments of the Criminal Code from 2013 introduced two new security measures: restraining order and eviction from apartment or other housing space. These measures eliminate the possibility of repeated criminal acts of particular kind by prohibiting the perpetrator to come close to the victim of a crime, or particular place. It is explicitly stipulated that measures can be proposed towards a perpetrator who, among others, commit a criminal act of violence in family or family community. By introducing these measures, provisions of the Criminal Code have been aligned with the Istanbul Convention.

74. In the case of criminal act entering into illegal marriage a more serious form is envisaged if another person is forced or threatened to enter into marriage. As for the criminal act extramarital community with a minor the graver form is supplemented by a qualifying circumstance when the act was done with the use of force or threat.

75. In the general section of the Criminal Code the compulsory aggravating circumstance is introduced for criminal acts committed out of hatred. Coming from the provisions of the CEDAW, the aim of the new provision is to ensure stricter sentencing, and by that improving criminal-law protection of particularly vulnerable social groups whose members are victims of various criminal acts committed out of hatred for belonging to that group.

76. The article stipulating that prosecution for criminal acts of rape or sexual intercourse with a helpless person shall be taken by a private action, if that act is done to a spouse, has been erased. Taking into account the recommendations of international and non-governmental organizations, the reason for this change is the fact that that provision put into unequal position a spouse who is a victim of these criminal acts in relation to the other victims.

Recommendation in paragraph 19(c)

77. In September 2015 a unique national SOS hotline for providing help to victims of violence in family was established, through the partnership of the Ministry of Labour and Social Welfare, the office of UNDP, the Delegation of the EU in Montenegro and the NGO SOS Niksic, which implements this project. For the time being this is the pilot project which lasts for 7 months, and for the continuation funds will be ensured from the state budget.

78. NGO SOS Nikšić provided the table with the overview of the funding they received from the state from 2011:

Year	Finance provider	Project name	Amount /EUR
1. 2011	Government of Montenegro (GoM)	General support to the service	4 000
2. 2012	GoM	General support to the service	1 000
3. 2013	GoM	Violence victims protection programme through engagement of confidants in Nikšić and Podgorica	5 500
4. 2013	Municipality of Nikšić	Local intervention for support services for women and children victims of violence	700
5. 2013	GoM	Providing conditions for integrated security and care for victims of violence in Nikšić	5 700
6. 2014	Municipality of Nikšić	Local intervention for support services for women and children victims of violence	950
7. 2014	GoM	SOS social service (SOS for women victims of violence)	2 500
8. 2015	GoM	General support to the service	600

79. In 2012 the municipality of Nikšić provided the NGO “SOS Nikšić” with the land lot for use of the of the surface of 738m² for the building of the shelter for women and children victims of violence, and exempted the NGO from paying the fees for communal furnishing of the construction land. The Ministry for Human and Minority Rights provided the funds for heating of the shelter in 2014.

Recommendation in paragraph 19(d)

80. The activities on establishing a unique data base on the victims of violence in family are in the preparatory phase, as a part of the project “Social card — Information system of social care”, through networking of data bases of the Police Directorate, courts and the prosecution. It is expected that the data base will be operational by the end of 2015.

81. During 2014 the realization of the 1st phase of the Social Card project was finalized. The project was finalized in the planned timeframe, by 31 December 2014, so that the system started to work as of 1 January 2015. The Information system encompassed all the business processes in the centres for social work. Besides social protection benefits through the information system, case management for social services is conducted, as well as business intelligence (reporting and statistics), monitoring and control, and management of work flows. In such a way all the social protection allowances and services from the field of child protection will be entered into the information system, which will allow for quality reporting and generating statistics needed for further analyses.

Recommendation in paragraph 19(e)

82. Trainings are organized in cooperation with the ministries in charge. For judges trainings are mandatory. The obligation originates from the Law on Judicial Council and Judges from 2015, which stipulates that judges have the right and duty to professionally develop. The Law also stipulates that a case of a judge not attending mandatory trainings is considered a minor disciplinary offence. These trainings provide information on the Law on Protection from Violence in Family, as well as other relevant regulations and international instruments for protection of human rights.

83. The Ministry for Human and Minority Rights, through TAIEX programme organizes trainings for different target groups.

84. The Law on Gender Equality from July 2015 anticipates mandatory trainings in gender equality, as well as corresponding sanctions for the legal persons that fail to perform that duty.

Trafficking and exploitation of prostitutionRecommendation in paragraph 21(a)

85. For the criminal act trafficking in human beings prison sentences are pronounced. For criminalization of trafficking in human beings and its processing the main regulations are the Criminal Code and the Criminal Procedure Code.

86. 124. Within the campaign of the Council of Europe against violence against children “One out of five” a number of meetings were organized which treated the issue of special vulnerability of children in relation to various forms of exploitation, and by itself in relation to trafficking in children for the purpose of work exploitation, forced begging, commissioning of criminal acts, entering into forced marriages, selling of body organs, sexual exploitation through child prostitution and sex tourism, child pornography and abuse of children in armed conflicts. During the work on changes of the Criminal Code, the alignment of criminal acts with the CoE Convention on Protection of Children from Sexual Exploitation and Sexual Abuse was reviewed. As a result, it was suggested to introduce a new criminal act — luring of a child in order to make a criminal act against sexual freedom, and to change criminal act — displaying pornographic material to children and production and possession of child pornography.

Participation in political and public life

Recommendation in paragraph 23(a)

134. The Amendments to the Law on Election of Counsellors and MPs from 2011, for the first time in Montenegro introduces the quota system on electoral candidate lists — whose aim is to enhance women participation in the bodies of representative government. The Law stipulates that an electoral list needs to have at least 30 per cent of candidates of a less represented sex, in order for it to be approved by the State Electoral Commission. Apart from this, there were no other guarantees, such as order on the list, by which higher percentage of women in the national and local parliaments would be ensured. Political parties applied this provision in the way that they placed candidates of a less represented sex (women) on last positions of the lists, which resulted in the fact that in the composition of the Parliament of Montenegro, after parliamentary elections in 2012, there were only 14 women MPs, which is around 17 per cent of the total number of MPs.

135. Through the Gender Programme IPA 2010, which was implemented in partnership of the Department for Gender Equality of the Ministry of Human and Minority Rights and UNDP, with the financial support of the EU, intensive advocacy was undertaken in order to improve affirmative action in the Law on Elections of Counsellors and MPs. The advocacy programme included the management, MPs and women groups of parliamentary political parties through a set of meetings about which the public was also informed. The media also supported these activities with TV shows dedicated to the topic, with the aim of raising awareness and creating more positive climate in the society and support for including more women in politics. The campaign resulted in the introduction of the measure which to an extent advances the quota for higher representation of women—the measure that women must be positioned as at least every fourth on the list. Namely, The Law on amendments to the Law on Election of Counsellors and MPs from March 2014 stipulates that among every four candidates on an electoral list following the list order (first four positions, second four positions etc.), there must be at least one candidate of a less represented sex.

136. It is important to emphasize that in the latest changes of the law from 2014, and additional guarantee for greater participation of women was introduced. The newly adopted measure stipulates that If the mandate of a counsellor or an MP from the less represented sex expires, that counsellor or an MP will be replaced by the next first candidate from the electoral list from the less represented sex.

137. For assessing the efficiency of applying the new solutions, it is necessary to wait for the new parliamentary elections in 2016. These solutions have, however, already had a positive impact on municipal elections in 2014, which lead to an increased participation of women counsellors, which was at the level of 26.52 per cent out of total number of counsellors. In the capital city Podgorica the participation of women in the city parliament rose from 17.54 to 32.2 per cent.

138. The table with the data is provided in the Annex 3.

Recommendation in paragraph 23(b)

139. The Law Amending the Law on Gender Equality which was adopted in the Parliament in June 2015 introduces the suggestions of the European Commission that promoting the principles of gender equality should be the part of the activities of legislative and executive power. A closer link has been established between the Gender Equality Law and the duties of political parties, with the Law on Political Parties and the Law on Election of Counsellors and MPs as separate laws, stipulating that political parties should in its acts predict solutions which will ensure equal access and higher participation of women in governing and decision-making structures.

Recommendation in paragraph 23(c)

Recommendation in paragraph 23(e)

142. Apart from the measures introduced in the legal system to ensure legal equality of men and women, measures of preferential treatment for women in politics are set up, such as quota system and other intraparty measures. The statutes of political parties in Montenegro mainly prescribe basic principles of promoting gender equality. Besides general principles, the statutes of most of the political parties in Montenegro contain provisions that introduce intraparty quotas for percentages in the process of proposing candidates and selecting members of party bodies, whereby the participation of women in decision-making party bodies is ensured. However, even besides legal guarantees contained in the highest legal acts of the political parties, it is not a rare case that de facto situation, i.e. real participation of women in management bodies is not on a required level, meaning that representation of women in highest party structures does not comply with the standards envisaged in the legal acts. Therefore, statutes of Montenegrin political parties should, besides mandatory setting standards on quota for women in management bodies, also contain mechanisms and procedures to be followed in order for the statutory provisions to be aligned with the real situation and to ensure higher participation of women in intraparty decision-making processes.

Recommendation in paragraph 23(f)

The aim of the programme was to additionally strengthen their capacities for political activism, and for work with women from their parties on further implementation and promotion of gender sensitivity in the area of participation of women in intraparty decision making, and in public and political life in general.

147. As of January 2015 a Roma woman has been included in the work of the Committee for Gender Equality of the Parliament of Montenegro, as a representative of Roma NGO.

For the 3rd, 5th, 8th and 9th grade the preparation of textbooks is under way. Sets of textbooks have been distributed for free in schools where desegregated education takes place. The number of RE children in primary schools has been steadily increasing — the figure of 1,883 students in 2014/2015 represents a triple increase in relation to 2001/2002 school year, when the number was 536.

222. In 2007 Montenegro became a member state of the Council of Europe and acceded to the Convention on the Reduction of Statelessness in relation to the succession of states. It also acceded to the European Convention on Nationality in 2010, with the reserve to Article 16 (“A State Party shall not make the renunciation or loss of another nationality a condition for the acquisition or retention of its nationality where such renunciation or loss is not possible or cannot reasonably be required.”).

223. In December 2013 Montenegro ratified the UN Convention on Reduction of Statelessness from 1961, which makes her one out of only a few European countries that acceded to both UN conventions and both CoE conventions that deal with the issue of statelessness.

224. The Ministry of Interior, as a carrier of primary authority and its implementing partners UNICEF and UNHCR announced the Public Call for persons residing in Montenegro but do not have access to citizenship of any country, or cannot prove that they have it, to approach the nearest branch office of the Ministry of Interior, in order to provide them with their personal data. Marriage and family relations

Recommendation in paragraph 37(a), (b)

226. A spouse can have the entitlement to family pension in accordance with legal regulations from the area of pension and disability insurance. Family pension is determined by old-age or disability pension that would be granted to the insuree at the time of death, that is, by pension which would be granted to the beneficiary at moment of death, in a percentage determined by the number of family members eligible for this pension, as such: for one member 70 per cent; for two members 80 per cent; for three members 90 per cent; for four or more members 100 per cent. The minimum pension level is determined when the insuree's pensionable service is multiplied by the coefficient 0.5, which means that, in calculating the pension amount, the insuree is guaranteed a personal coefficient 0.5, i.e., he/she during his/her working life realized profit in the amount of 50 per cent of the average wage in Montenegro. In addition to such determined minimum pension the insuree is, if it is more favourable for him, guaranteed a minimum pension in the nominal amount which amounts to 100,40 EUR. Therefore, when determining the pension amount it is compared which one of the two minimum pensions is higher, whether it is the minimum pension with personal coefficient of 0.5 or the minimum pension in nominal amount. The insuree is granted the more favourable amount.

227. The law also defines minimum partial disability pension, which is determined in the amount of 75 per cent of the minimum full disability pension. Minimum family pension is determined by the minimum old-age or disability pension that would be granted to the insuree at the time of death, that is, by the minimum pension granted to the beneficiary at the moment of death, in a percentage determined depending on the number of family members entitled to family pension. Instead of such determined minimum family pension, family members, if it is more favourable for them, are granted the minimum family pension in the nominal amount of 100.40 EUR.

228. The Law on Amendments to the Family Law is currently being drafted, and the working group which is formed for preparing the text of the law has been informed about the Committee recommendation.

The Law on Employment and Work of Foreigners, when it comes to legal migrations and employment of foreigners, is based on the standards of ILO, most significantly the ILO Constitution. This law defines migration policies that protect the interests of foreign workers and members of their families which legally reside in Montenegro. Therefore it is not necessary to ratify ICRMW because interests of the migrants are already protected.
