30. As of 2017, nationwide 9 OSSCs and 16 temporary shelters provide services to DV survivors and more 10 new OSSCs are planned to be built in 2018.

31. Minister of JHA Order No. A/27, 2017 established a Cross-sectorial Sub-council to combat and prevent DV, crimes against children, and provide professional guidance alongside with monitoring implementation of the LCDV.

The members of this Sub-council, representing the Ministry of LSP, Ministry of Health, Ministry of ECSS, Family, FCYDA, Central Police Department, Ulaanbaatar City Police Department and four NGOs, have planned anew the inter-sectorial cooperation on policies, trainings and promotion and have been working towards ensuring implementation of the legislation.

33. The Secretariat of Coordination Council for Crime Prevention along with the FCYDA have jointly revised curriculums and content of international and NGOs that work in the area of capacity building of Joint Team members, consolidating the contents and removing the differences in interpretation and terminology. In accordance with the consolidated program, the Training of Certified Trainers was approved by the Minister of JHA and the Minister of LSP as of the first half of 2017, trainings were organized for 4634 members of the 609 Joint Teams.

37. The National Statistics Office conducted the first nationwide "GBV Survey" with the technical and financial support of the UNFPA and the Swiss Development and Cooperation Agency. Since the subject and content of the research was sensitive, the study was made under the title of "Women's Health and Life Experience Survey" in May and June of 2017 and covered 7860 households of 524 units including a woman aged 15–64 years old from each household.
38. The study aimed at defining forms, ways, types, impact and causes of violence against women, assessing and evaluating the SDGs' indicators and quantifying and evaluating data collected according to the indicators of the Goal 5 and coming up with data that can be compared to international ones. The result of the survey will be published.
39. The Government of Mongolia implemented the "Youth Development Project 2013–2017" (YDP) in cooperation with the UNFPA that set four goals including "develop and adopt GBV prevention model, strengthen the capacity of the employees in the education sector and empower adolescents and young people to combat GBV as well as support positive relationships". In the frame of the project's task to develop an educational programme on GBV prevention in the selected provinces and city districts, organizations and target groups: a GBV prevention module is finalized as a topic in education programme on life skills and in curriculums of secondary school, TVETs, Institute for Advanced Training of Teachers, Lifelong Education Centre and Youth Development Centre.
40. The "Safe School" model, designed to create GBV prevention mechanisms has been continuously piloted in the selected schools of Bayan-Ulgii, Zavkhan, Umnugovi provinces and Chingeltei district of Ulaanbaatar. The mid-term independent assessment of the project was conducted in 2016; revealed that 80.7% of 12-18 year-olds and 92.7% of teachers in the selected schools had acquired a clear understanding of gender rights, gender inequality and GBV.

42. A background study that was conducted in 2014 within the YDP to improve knowledge and understanding of young men and women on gender rights and inequalities; revealed that due to significant lack of knowledge, information and understanding about violence among young people there is a tendency to accept violence as a norm. This demonstrated urgent need to establish mechanism for violence prevention. More than half of the surveyed young people have never heard about GBV, and only one in three young people had an adequate knowledge about GBV. Only 1.3 percent of youth had a comprehensive understanding about violence.
43. The result of the research on "Factors influencing sexual and reproductive health of young people aged 15 to 24 in Mongolia" demonstrates the need to increase public awareness of GBV and targeted actions to prevent violence. According to the project's mid-term evaluation, anti-GBV campaigns and advocacy in 2016 targeted 158279 young people. It was four-fold increase in number compared to 2015.

44. One of the six main goals of the NPGE aims at “Combatting violence and discrimination and undertaking comprehensive measures to prevent violence and discrimination”. Under this goal 5 measures are planned and being implemented.

45. The first goal of the NPGE, “Supporting equal participation of women and men in sustainable socio-economic development and ensuring equal opportunities for receiving development benefits” aims at making work places gender sensitive, preventing any gender based discrimination in job recruitment, stopping discriminatory practices if they take place and strengthening penalty and punishment for work place discrimination to be reflected in the law. The NPGE also highlighted developing an assessment methodology on equal employment compensation for women and men for equal work and reflecting these objectives to be implemented in a social consensus with the parties involved.

46. Together with sectoral authorities and employers in various sectors of economy specific measures are taken to prevent sexual harassment at workplace and create work environment free from sexual harassment. For instance, the internal rules of the Ministry of Food, Agriculture and Light Industry encourage employees to raise a complaint regarding sexual harassment at workplace or any other gender equality violations and have the issue to be solved by a gender specialist of the Ministry.

47. Further plans include an organization of the second National Forum on Multilateral Cooperation on Combating DV with additional participation of the representatives of education sector; setting up OSSCs in every province to render support to victims of violence; delivery of video training for Joint Teams and setting up a professional and methodology support in their everyday work.

49. The curriculum of the Police School of the Law Enforcement University of Mongolia incorporates a mandatory training on combatting and preventing GBV and DV.

50. At the initiative of the NCGE, in collaboration with the International Development Law Organization (IDLO) a handbook for law enforcement officials was developed. The series of trainings on “Strengthening capacity and coordination of the legal sector in combatting domestic violence” were organized by the Ministry of JHA in eight provinces: Darkhan-Uul, Bulgan, Orkhon, Selenge, Govisumber, Dornogovi, Dundgovi, and Umnugovi, for 255 trainees including law enforcement and judiciary officers, lawyers, attorneys, heads of the local Branch Councils of the Coordination Committees for Crime Prevention, and social workers of the FCYDA.

53. In collaboration with the Legal Aid Center, a training “Specifics of operations, combatting DV” was organized in February, 2017 with involvement of state, province and capital city attorneys.
54. Implementing such measures as a mandatory inclusion of trainings on combatting and preventing GBV and DV in study programmes of law enforcement educational institutions, increasing capacity of 400 law enforcement officers, judicial authorities, lawyers and attorneys, resolving family disputes on DV cases, and applying gender sensitive approaches when addressing cases of women, violence survivors have brought tangible positive results.
55. In the future, capacity building trainings will be conducted in cooperation with the IDLO for all law implementers: officers, judges, lawyer, and attorneys, heads of the local Branch Councils of the Coordination Committees for Crime Prevention, and staff of the FCYDA.

57. As mentioned in the report on implementation of the Recommendation 19(a), adequate conditions for redress and rehabilitation are created for the women with disabilities who are victims of violence at the OSSCs.
58. A National Program on Promoting Rights, Inclusion and Development of Persons with Disabilities (PwD) was approved by the Government Resolution No. 321, 2017 aiming at rendering a comprehensive support to promote rights, inclusion, development and social protection of PwD. The Programme set 8 goals including ensuring participation of PwD in all aspects of society in matters affecting the lives of PwD, with sets of activities to provide legal assistance to PwD the violence survivors and conduct training for police, attorneys, judges, social workers, medical doctors and other relevant officials on proper communication with PwD.
