Introduction

1. The Kingdom of Cambodia ratified the Convention on the Rights of the Child (CRC) on 15 October 1992 and the Optional Protocol on the sale of children, child prostitution and child pornography on 21 February 2002 without any reservation. This document is the first and second report that details the implementation of the Optional Protocol between 2002 and 2010, pursuant to article 12, paragraphs 1 and 2 of the Optional Protocol and article 44, paragraph 1(b) of the Convention on the Rights of the Child.

I. General information

2. The Cambodian National Council for Children (CNCC) has set up an inter-sectoral working group to prepare the report on the implementation of the Optional Protocols to the CRC. The working group comprises members from the Ministry of Social Affairs, Veteran and Youth Rehabilitation (MoSVY); Ministry of Justice; officials of the CNCC Secretariat; Ministry of Tourism; Cambodian Human Rights Committee; Ministry of National Defence; Ministry of Interior, Ministry of Labour and Vocational Training; Ministry of Planning; Ministry of Education, Youth and Sports; Ministry of Health; Council of Jurists; representatives of the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF); representatives of the United Nations Inter-agency Project on Human Trafficking; NGO Committee for Children's Rights, ECPAT (End Child Prostitution, Child Pornography and Trafficking of Children for Sexual Purposes), COSECAM (Coalition to Address Child Exploitation in Cambodia) and Cambodia Acts. This group sought comments from other non-governmental organizations (NGOs) and other international organizations on the report. This report was submitted by the CNCC to the Child Forum held on 15 November 2010 to seek additional opinions from children from 16 provinces/cities, and submitted to the National Consultation Workshop held on 23 December 2010 to seek opinions from relevant actors from the ministries and institutions and NGOs. The opinions of children and relevant actors were seriously considered by the CNCC.

3. The Kingdom of Cambodia implements the Convention of the Rights of the Child and the Optional Protocol on the sale of children, child prostitution and child pornography through human rights-based approaches, in particular the rights of the child serve as basis for programming. The principles of non-discrimination, the primacy of the best interest of the child, the rights to life, the right to survival and development, and the respect of the child views are the core of the programmes, projects and activities. The rights of the child are exercised through a country programme which is prepared once every 5 years, and within each year an annual programme is prepared where indicators to be achieved for each year are determined.

4. The Constitutional Council issued the Decision No. 092/003/2007 KBT.C dated 10 July 2007, which states that "At case trial, in principle, a judge shall rely on law". The term law above-stated refers to national laws, including the Constitution, which is the supreme law, and other applicable laws, as well as the international conventions that the Kingdom of Cambodia has recognized, especially the Convention on the Rights of the Child. In criminal cases, the law shall be strictly interpreted; the judge cannot extend the implementation by analogy.

5. Following the ratification of the Optional Protocol by the Kingdom of Cambodia until now, the situation of children and women has been significantly progressed compared to Cambodia's Millennium Development Goals. Serious attention has been paid to many areas such as elimination of the sale of children, child prostitution and child pornography, and protection and enjoyment of the rights enshrined in the Optional Protocol have been guaranteed. Meanwhile some Cambodian children remain facing challenges such as violence, exploitations and abuses.

II. Data

6. The Statistics Law, which governs all matters, related to collection, processing, compilation, analysis, publication and dissemination of data in the whole Cambodia, was promulgated in 2005. The National Institute of Statistics of the Ministry of Planning is in charge of these tasks. In the past, CAMInfo has been known as the Cambodian socio-economic indicator database for monitoring progress on the Cambodian Millennium Development Goal as well as other national, regional and global goals including those of A World Fit For Children. CAMInfo has the data from national and capital/provincial to commune/Sangkat level that enables the monitoring on local indicators. The major data from Cambodia's Socio-Economic survey, data obtained from constant watch on, administration data and database of commune/Sangkat were also included in CAMInfo and updated twice a year. CAMInfo has been used for updating the report on the implementation of the 2005 Millennium Development Goal and for the development of the government's periodic report to the Committee on the Rights of the Child. In 2002, the Ministry of Planning developed the national database at commune/sangkat levels. This database was reviewed in 2004-2005 in view of improving its quality and changing its existing indicators as well as supplementing indicators on health, education, protection, water and hygiene. The national database on commune/sangkat is collected every year from the data-book of village/commune/Sangkat and used as tool for setting up commune/sangkat investment plan.

7. In 1999, the Ministry of Social Affairs, Veteran and Youth Rehabilitation (MoSVY) set up a database system to collect information on women and children who are victims of or vulnerable to trafficking and migration. In 2007, MoSVY established a database on alternative care for children in order to gather regular data on children under institutional care. The 2010 statistics indicate that 11,939 children in total are currently under long-term care in 269 centers of which 21 are state and 248 others are NGO-run centers.

8. In 2004, the Ministry of Interior (MoI) developed the national database on sexual criminal offense in order to gather information on sexual abuse, sexual exploitation and trafficking cases, including information on victim and suspect details, which could be used as tool for case management. Later on, data on domestic violence was included in this database. The Ministry of Interior has provided hotline services to 7 capital and provinces. The database on offenses of trafficking and sexual exploitation was modified in accordance with the Law on Suppression of Human Trafficking and Sexual Exploitation.

9. In 2006, the Ministry of Justice developed the national child justice data collection and monitoring system, including the computerized database in order to monitor developments of children in conflict with the law and child victim cases at different institutions of the criminal justice system. The Ministry of Justice has implemented pilot projects on child justice data collection and database in 6 capital and provinces and is now reviewing them so that they will match with the new case registries at the model courts. This system will also be linked to the database of other criminal justice institutions.

10. In short, major data systems include:

Names of Data System	Responsible Ministries, Institutions	Types of Data
CAMInfo	Ministry of Planning	Socio-economic
Database on Repatriation of Women and Child Victims	MoSVY	Women and child victims of cross-border trafficking
Database on Sex Offences, Human Trafficking and Domestic Violence	Ministry of Interior	Reports to police, arrests, rescues, referrals to social services, victim and suspect details, of cases of sexual abuse, exploitation, trafficking and domestic violence
Database on Child Justice	Ministry of Justice	Indicators on child victims and children in conflict with the law at investigation and trial stages.

11. In 2009, in addition to the collection of data through the above mentioned data collection system, a mixed Task Force comprised of members from the Ministry of Interior, Ministry of Justice and the Country Military Police conducted monitoring visits and data collection of criminal cases in 24 capital and provinces.

12. In general, the collection of data on human trafficking and sexual exploitation by the concerned ministries and institutions has been implemented through the following procedures:

- Specialized unit(s) developed information registry in capital and province;
- Completion of detailed form by hand or by computer, filling in secret code, victim's identity, suspect's identity, type of offences, actions taken, categories of decisions, etc.;
- The capital and provincial levels recorded information and data and sent them to the ministries;
- In some cases, officials from ministries went down to collect information and data in the capital and province;
- Data was then entered into the database at the ministerial levels.

13. Sexual offences in 2009 increased in comparison to other offences. Of offences investigated by the Department of Anti-Human Trafficking and Juvenile Protection, sexual offence stood for 64 percent, domestic violence 20 percent, sexual exploitation and pornography 11 percent and human trafficking 5 percent. So far, there has been no national survey and database which can clearly determine the number and incident of the sale of children, including transfer of children for the specific purpose of sexual exploitation and the transfer of organs of children for profit, and the engagement of children in forced labour; and there has been no clear data on children adopted through the efforts of intermediaries using methods incompatible with Article 21 of the Convention on the Rights of the Child and the Hague Convention on Protection of Children and Cooperation in respect of Intercountry Adoption. Due to the nature of the offences and socio-psychological factors of victims and their families, fewer offences of trafficking were reported to the competent authorities.¹

14. From 2005 to 2009, the AHTJP Department, the Ministry of Interior achieved the following results:

19. The type of exploitation in the Kingdom of Cambodia includes Labour Exploitation and Sexual Exploitation.

20. Due to the hidden nature of prostitution and limited civil registration, there has been no clear indicator with regard to the number of persons under the age of 18 engaged in prostitution in the Kingdom of Cambodia.

21. The Kingdom of Cambodia adopted a tough law to address the problem of pornography, however there remain those hidden activities and exploitation. Offenses in relation to commercialization in showing/performing, selling, renting the non-visa videos in violation of the copyrights and showing some pornographic videos, etc., have been effectively responded to through combating operations (suppression campaigns). But some perpetrators post pornography, among other things, in websites, copy it in electronic devices and hand phones, and store it in video compact discs (VCDs).

22. In general, pornographic depictions of persons under the age of 18 are depicted in real pictures whose sources are unknown. Live pornographic performance is prohibited by laws and has been completely suppressed since 2007. Up to 2008, there were 2,618 cases where the vendors were instructed and contracted with (issued cautions with an agreement) for termination of illegal business and 102 illegal video show shops closed down. Some cases were referred to courts for prosecution according to the procedures. The Inter-ministerial Committees in all capital and provinces have launched suppression campaigns and confiscated and destroyed 97,549 copies of the banned CDs, including video cassettes and equipment used by offenders to produce and disseminate pornography, with confiscations of hundred thousands of CDs and VCDs. The capital and provincial STST committee informed owners of karaoke businesses, guest houses and hotels to report to competent authorities in case of any suspicion of activities concerning child prostitution and pornography for immediate check.

23. The Kingdom of Cambodia has set up and is making efforts to fully operationalize its database concerning the number of charges and convictions of the above offences by disaggregating the data according to the nature of sexual offences as prescribed in the Criminal Code and the Law on Suppression of Human Trafficking and Sexual Exploitation. To achieve and sustain this work, however, it requires more time, human resources and additional budget.

37. Since the commune/sangkat elections in 2002, all Commune/sangkat Councils in the country have selected a Commune Focal Point for Women and Children (CFPWC) to ensure that women and children's issues are included in respective planning and decisions at the decentralized level (commune/Sangkat). Starting in 2004, the Commune Committees for Women and Children (CCWC) were established and piloted in 203 communes/sangkats in the capital and provinces, supported by UNICEF which acts as advisory body to Commune/Sangkat Councils on all women and children-related issues. Presently, this committee has been established in all communes/sangkats throughout the country. IV. Prevention

58. In general, sexual exploitation of children has been continuously happening in any part of the world. Many countries are developing relevant laws and taking measures to eliminate this problem. As for the Kingdom of Cambodia, the Royal Government continuously incorporated this issue in the political platform, laws development, and measures and action plans to prevent this issue. While implementing these measures, the Royal Government of Cambodia made efforts to promote the implementation of poverty reduction strategy and improvement of social welfare as priority by focusing on nutrition, welfare and education. To implement this strategy, the government ministries and institutions have developed a lot of programmes in good cooperation with key development partners as well as NGOs. The Council for Agriculture and Rural Development had developed the National Social Protection Strategic Plan which is approved by the Royal Government in April 2011.

59. According to the Policy on Alternative Care for Children, children living in one or more types of vulnerable situation as described in the following are considered as children in need of special protection or children at risk. Children in special need include: orphans, abandoned children; children with HIV/AIDS or children affected by HIV/AIDS; physically, sexually or mentally abused children; street children; children in conflict with the law; children who have suffered from sexual exploitation or hazardous form of labour; children with disability; children addicted to addictive substances and children who have no access to physical basic needs. The type of children at risk is linked to a number of matters such as extreme poverty, family separation, alcohol abuse, gambling, domestic violence, school dropping-out, settling in a new location, and living with people who are not their biological parents. The identification of children vulnerable to the sale of children, child prostitution and child pornography is based on these criteria.

60. MoSVY has developed and is testing its draft Prakas on the Procedures for Implementing the Policy on Alternative Care for Children and mechanisms on the functioning of a child welfare system in 5 provinces (Kompong Speu, Kompong Thom, Battambang, Prey Veng and Svay Rieng). Local mechanisms are being tested to identify vulnerable families and children; to provide family support and referral services in order to prevent family separation or disintegration; and to find alternative community-based solutions for vulnerable children.

67. From 2006 to 2009, MoWA made efforts to contribute to the reduction of poverty which is a factor affecting human trafficking and exploitation through a pilot Village Fund Programme (fund for the increase of incomes and emergency) in order to improve the livelihood of families vulnerable to trafficking and risk migration in 10 villages of Kompong Roar district, Svay Rieng province. The total fund was increased from US$8700 in 2006 to US$9,337 in 2009, and 873 families received resources from the fund for the increase of incomes or loan while 121 others received the emergency fund.

At present the Secretariat of the STSLS has finished reviewing the draft in collaboration with the COMMIT Task Force, and has submitted it to the National Committee to lead the Suppression of Human Trafficking, Smuggling, Labour and Sexual Exploitation of Women and Children for approval;

From 2005 to 2008 the new revised programme was piloted in 2 provinces: Prey Veng and Svay Rieng. This programme trained various agents, local authorities and communities to work together to identify suspected persons and monitor their activities. At the same time a number of vulnerable community children received social services. A social fund was created to provide emergency assistance to vulnerable children in 408 targeted villages of the two provinces. The programme has raised awareness of the people in 14,039 villages of 184 districts in the entire country on 3 topics that included birth registration, combating sexual abuse and combating child battering.

72. The Ministry of Education, Youth and Sports has educated students on human trafficking through formal and informal education. The Ministry has run a safety monitoring programme for children at school, raised the community's awareness to be cautious about preventing children from being cheated and trafficked. Besides training and educational campaign, the Department of Informal Education of MoEYS has produced 2 manuals for informal training. The adoptee and the natural parents shall have the right to claim support from the other and the obligation to support the other.

88. The Kingdom of Cambodia ratified the Hague Convention on Protection of Children and Cooperation in respect of Intercountry Adoption in 2007.

89. Besides ratifying the Hague Convention on Protection of Children and Cooperation in respect of Intercountry Adoption, the Kingdom of Cambodia signed bilateral treaties with the Republic of France and Italy to cooperate in intercountry adoption. The National Policy on Alternative Care for Children stipulates different types of alternative care for children without primary caregivers and sets out principles of alternative care. The Royal Government has made a determination that institutional care and international adoption are options of the last resort. This policy aims at ensuring that children grow up in a family and in a community, in particular with their biological family and community of origin; that children are able to access health services, free education and psycho-social support for the child's survival and development; and to enhance the capacity of communities to care for and protect vulnerable children through the promotion and strengthening of all community safety nets.

90. Article 5, paragraph 7 of the Law on Inter-Country Adoption provides that the competent authorities involved in inter-country adoption procedures shall ensure that the inter-country adoption process does not result in unlawful financial gain and that the abduction of, sale of and trafficking in children are prevented. Only expenses, fees and contributions prescribed by legal provisions in this law shall be paid.

91. To protect children's basic rights which are subject to inter-country adoption, the Law provides the following rules:

(a) Prevention of illegal adoption: Only agencies authorized by the Ministry in charge of Social Affairs of the Kingdom of Cambodia and competent institutions of the receiving country shall be entitled to operate in any inter-country adoption procedure. The number of agencies from each receiving country that may be authorized to provide services in the Kingdom of Cambodia shall be determined by joint agreement of the Ministry in charge of Social Affairs and the competent authorities of the receiving country;

(b) Inciting a mother or pregnant woman to deliver her child as a subject for adoption and advertising of adoption services is prohibited. The act of directly inciting, for profit making purpose, the parents or one of them to abandon an already-born or a yet-to-be-born child, is prohibited. The act of serving one-self as an intermediary between a person or a couple who desires to adopt a child and a parent who desires to abandon his/her already-born or a yet-to-be-born child, for profit making purpose, is prohibited. The acts of serving one-self as an intermediary between a person or a couple who desires to adopt a child and a woman accepting to bear a pregnancy of the child and to deliver this child to them afterward, for profit making purpose is prohibited. The Ministry in charge of Social Affairs may suspend or revoke the authorization or refuse to renew an authorization of any inter-country adoption agency that has advertised or published the identity or photograph of a child who is a subject of adoption to influence any individual to apply for adoption;

(c) Only the agency that is properly authorized is entitled to operate in inter-country adoption;

The acts of substituting one child for another child, simulating or concealing the existence of one child, when this action has resulted in a falsification of civil registration certificate is punishable by an imprisonment of between 1 month and 6 months;

(e) An adoption may proceed only if a free and clear consent from parent(s) is given without defect of declaration of intention. Parent(s) of a child must be counseled by authorized competent social service agent before giving their consent. In case the parents are dead or are incapable of expressing their will or have been divested of their parental powers, the consent shall be given by the guardian for the minor. The parental power holder(s) who is in extremely difficult circumstances may place the child under the care of the Ministry in charge of Social Affairs. In this case, the Ministry in charge of Social Affairs becomes a guardian for the child who has been placed under the care of the ministry, in accordance with a court order. The consent on adoption must be given by the parental power holder(s) in the presence of commune/Sangkat chief and must be verified by the court;

(f) The Law on Inter-Country Adoption provides a number of guidelines relating to expenses, fees and contribution in respect of inter-country adoption which are to be set out in the joint Prakas of the Minister of Economy and Finance and Minister of Ministry in charge of Social Affairs.

92. The production and dissemination of advertising materials concerning offences prescribed in the Optional Protocol, in particular child pornography, is provided for by the Law on Trafficking and Sexual Exploitation as criminal offence. Production and dissemination of child pornography is punishable with an imprisonment from 2 years to 5 years and a fine from 4,000,000 Riels to 10,000,000 Riels. Soliciting or advertising for prostitution is punishable with the same punishment.

93. The Royal Government issued guidelines and measures to suppress and prevent the dissemination of children and women pornography, which include the following:

(f) Developing campaign for youth and social education in collaboration with all relevant ministries.

94. Data from the Department of Anti-Human Trafficking and Juvenile Protection in 2009 show that sexual exploitation and pornography represented 11% of sexual offences. In that same year, 21 cases of offences related to pornography were suppressed and 15 perpetrators were arrested by the Department of Anti-Human Trafficking and Juvenile Protection.

95. Extraditing a person accused of committing an offence prescribed in the Optional Protocol and other criminal offences shall be applied in accordance with provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure relating to extradition. Extraditing a foreigner arrested in the territory of the Kingdom of Cambodia is governed by the provisions of international treaties and conventions ratified by the Kingdom of Cambodia. In case there is no such international treaty or convention ratified by the Kingdom of Cambodia, provisions of the Chapter on Extradition in the Penal Code shall be applicable, unless otherwise provided in other laws. An extradition may be made only if the prosecuted facts against the wanted person constitute an offence under the laws of both the requesting state and the Kingdom of Cambodia. All extradition requests shall be submitted to the Royal Government of Cambodia through the diplomatic channel. The Minister of Foreign Affairs of the Kingdom of Cambodia shall forward the request together with supporting documents to the Minister of Justice. The Minister of Justice shall verify the regularity of the request and then forward it to the General Prosecutor attached to the Court of Appeal of Phnom Penh. The Investigating Chamber of the Court of Appeal of Phnom Penh is the only organ that has competency to consider the regularity of the extradition request received by the Royal Government. Article 33 of the Constitution states that, “Khmer citizens shall not be deprived of their nationality, exiled or arrested and deported to any foreign country unless there is a mutual agreement on extradition.” So far, Cambodia has signed extradition treaties with a number of countries: the treaty with the Kingdom of Thailand was ratified in Bangkok on 6 May 1998; the treaty with China was ratified in Beijing on 9 February 1999; the treaty with the People’s Republic of Laos was ratified in Vientiane on 21 October 1999; and the treaty with Korea was ratified in Phnom Penh on 22 October 2009.

96. So far the Cambodian authority has arrested a number of foreign nationals who came to Cambodia and committed offences. For example:

(a) In 2009, 32 foreign suspects were detained and sent to the court of first instance. They were 7 French, 6 Americans, 3 Koreans, 3 Chinese, 2 Canadians, 2 Thais, 2 British, 1 German, 1 Greek, 1 Swedish, 1 Swiss, 1 Japanese, 1 Danish, and 1 Israeli;

(b) In 2009, the Kingdom of Cambodia extradited 1 Australian who had committed sexual abuse against a minor and fled to Cambodia as a tourist. This person was accused by the Australian authority of committing the act of pornography against a minor in violation of the Australian law. This person fled to and hid himself in Cambodia. The Australian authority requested the Cambodian authority to arrest and extradite him to be punished in accordance with the Australian law. At the time, the Kingdom of Cambodia and Australia did not have extradition treaty with each other. However, based on the Criminal Procedure Code 2007, the Cambodian authority could extradite this offender to the Australian authority. On 22 October 2009, the Cambodian Authority handed over the offender to the Australian authority;

(c) In 2008, the General Commissioner of the Cambodian National Police as well as the Country Military Police paid attention to and urged specialized departments, police commissioners and military police in all capital and provinces to make efforts to investigate and arrest foreign suspects. As a result, they detained and sent 11 foreign suspects to the court. Among them are 4 Americans; 1 Russian; 1 Italian; 2 French; 1 Japanese; 1 Swedish; and 1 British who were deported out of Cambodia.

97. Since the Protocol came into force, the Kingdom of Cambodia has never refused any extradition request to extradite anyone within its jurisdiction who would have been accused by another state of committing any offence prescribed in this Optional Protocol. Also, the Kingdom of Cambodia has never made any extradition request to extradite anyone to Cambodia who would have been accused of committing any offence prescribed in this Optional Protocol.

98. On 27 July 2009 the Investigating Chamber of the Court of Appeal of Phnom Penh held a trial and adjudicated in accordance with a Writ of Decision No. 34 Chh./24 July 2009 to extradite an Australian national to Australia for having committed child pornography.

99. In addition to extradition treaties, the Kingdom of Cambodia signed a Treaty on Mutual Legal Assistance in Criminal Matters in November 2004 within the ASEAN framework to assist each other in criminal matters, such as in investigation, prosecution, and legal proceedings. In addition, the Kingdom of Cambodia has signed regional bilateral or multilateral agreements, such as:

(a) The ASEAN cooperation agreement in tourism provides for practical measures to be taken to prevent tourism-related abuse of cultural heritage and natural resources of the countries in the region, especially women and children in the 8th ASEAN Summit in Phnom Penh, 4-5 November 2002;

(b) The Memorandum of Understanding on Cooperation between GMS countries that implements the programmes in relation to the Coordinated Mekong Ministerial Initiative against Trafficking (COMMIT) to respond to trafficking;

(e) The Cooperation Agreement between the Royal Government of Cambodia and the Government of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam on Operational Procedures in Identifying Victims of Trafficking;

(f) Currently, the Kingdom of Cambodia is in the process of making an agreement with Malaysia as well.

100. Within the country, there is an agreement on Guidelines for Implementation and Cooperation between Relevant Government Institutions and Victim-Support Agencies in Cases of Human Trafficking, concluded on 6 February 2007.

101. Chapter 7 on Civil Remedy of the Law on Suppression of Human Trafficking and Sexual Exploitation, in particular Article 45 nullifies a contract that is made in connection with the act of selling/buying or exchanging a person.

102. Article 48 provides additional penalties, such as:

2. Seizure of the objects or funds that are intended to commit the offence;

3. Seizure of incomes or properties earned as a result from the offence;
4. Seizure of the utensils, materials and movable properties garnishing a premise in which the offence was committed;
5. Closure of an establishment having served to prepare or to commit the offence;
6. The restriction of civil rights;
7. Prohibition from taking a residency;
8. Prohibition from leaving the territory of the Kingdom of Cambodia;

104. These additional penalties may be declared if the offences prescribed in the Optional Protocol have been committed.

VI. Protection of the rights of victims (arts. 8 and 9 (3 and 4))

105. The Decision No. 107 K.C.K.K dated on 20 December 2007 on Principles on the Protection of the Rights of Child Victims of Trafficking of the Cambodian National Council for Children states that in all actions concerning child victims of trafficking, whether undertaken by public welfare institutions of the state or privately-owned, police, court, administrative authority or legislative body, the best interest of the child shall be the primary consideration.

106. The Ministry of Justice issued a Prakas No. 62 K.C.B.R.K/08 dated on 6 October 2008 on the Use of Court Screen and TV-Linked Testimony from Child/Vulnerable Victims or Witnesses in order to:

- (a) Provide a legal framework in which the child/vulnerable victims or witnesses enjoy a safe and supportive environment so that they can provide information regarding their experience;
- (b) Obtain as much information about the offences as possible;
- (c) Reduce trauma on the child/vulnerable victims or witnesses; and
- (d) Reduce threat to the child/vulnerable victims or the witnesses' safety.

107. The Ministry of Justice has set up court screens in the court of first instance in the entire country. Courtroom TV-linked equipments for Testimony from Child/Vulnerable Victims or Witnesses were installed in courtrooms of five courts of first instance. The ministry has produced instructional videos for child victims, child witnesses and children in conflict with the law regarding the role of different criminal justice actors. The Ministry of Interior has been using properly equipped child-interview rooms to interview child victims at the specialized departments as well as several other priority provinces and capital.

108. As of May 2010, 174 organizations have signed an MoU with the Ministry of Social Affairs, Veteran and Youth Rehabilitation to provide child welfare, social welfare and rehabilitation services to target groups such as elderly, orphans, disabled children as well as protection for victims of human trafficking and sexual exploitation. Of these organizations, 67 are national and 107 are international NGOs. More than 20 organizations are providing short-term and long-term accommodation in order to provide rehabilitation services such as spiritual encouragement (counseling), short term vocational training and job placement/creation. After the rehabilitation of the children, they were reintegrated into the community.

109. The Royal Government of Cambodia has adopted and implemented the Policy on Alternative Care for Children and the Minimum Standards for Child Care.

110. MoSVY in collaboration with NGOs has provided referral and reintegration services for at-risk and victimized children and women. In 2009, 992 victims of labour migration, labour exploitation and human trafficking were repatriated: 215 from Thailand, 773 from Vietnam, and 4 from Malaysia. Among those repatriated persons, 515 are children. These children were rehabilitated and reintegrated. 469 women and girls who are victims of sexual exploitation in the country were rescued and provided appropriate services at state and NGO-run centres. 1,474 victims were reintegrated and 516 cases were closed.

Reintegration and follow-up were carried out for 1,611 victims, including 237 family tracings, 165 family assessments, 212 reintegrations and 595 follow-ups. 614 cases were closed.

112. From October 2008 to October 2009, the Bar Association of the Kingdom of Cambodia helped defend 544 cases for poor people including 66 minors and 45 women. In 2010, the Bar Association assisted 10 children in contact with the justice system. In addition, a majority of legal services were provided for children through legal aid NGOs.

113. Decision No. 107 K.C.K.K dated 20 December 2007 on Principles for Protection of the Rights of Child Victims of Trafficking provides the following guidelines and implementing instructions:

1. In principle, the birth certificate is the most important document for searching for and identifying the child. In case the real age of the victim is unknown, identity card, school record, physical appearance, psychological maturity, certification, health or teeth or bone (finger bone) examination sheet and DNA (Deoxyribonucleic Acid) examination sheet can be taken into account to determine the age of the child victim of trafficking in addition to the document or family book of the victim. Legally recognized documents that certify the birth or age of the child obtained from a person who knew these matters and related to culture or belief observation that identify the age of the child can also be taken into account. Where there is uncertainty of the age of the victim and there appear to be factors to believe that that person is a child, that person is presumed to be a child. While the age of the victim is being verified for a suitable period of time, that victim is considered as a child who will be placed under special protection measures as prescribed in this decision.

2. The investigation shall not affect the security of the child victim. For example, the investigation must not be made known to the suspect and confidentiality of the child victim is maintained. Moreover, photo taking, audio recording and dissemination of information to the public about the identity of the child victim are prohibited. The child victim must be brought from the location where he/she is found to a good and safe environment, including referral to social services organization or institution. The child victim must not be kept at the police post for more than 48 hours. The child must not be kept at the detention facility at all cost. For the safety and security of the child victim, police must assess the possible risk and maintain secrecy about the child's location and that of the service provider.

3. The child victim has the right to receive all information that affects him or her, including information about his or her rights, other services, family reunification and/or the process of repatriation.

4. The child victim has the right to express his or views freely of all matters that affect him or her, including matters relating to legal procedures, alternative care, protection as well as the determination and implementation of a solution within a suitable period of time. Views of the child victim of trafficking must be taken into account and assessed according to his or her age, maturity, ability and the best interest of the child.

114. In 2004, the Centre for Lawyer Training and Professional Improvement organized a training of trainers on child rights and legal representation and developed a training manual on the topic. Since 2006, basic training on Children’s Rights, Laws and Justice has been integrated into the training curriculum of the Centre for Lawyer Training and Professional Improvement for student lawyers.

115. Similar training was organized at the Royal Academy for Judicial Professions for incumbent judges and prosecutors. The Royal Academy for Judicial Professions has produced two training videos for court officials for interviewing child victims and children in conflict with the law. The number of judges, prosecutors and lawyers that received training is as follows:

Year	Judges-Prosecutors	Lawyers
2005		60

118. From 2008 to 2010, judicial police officials from the Anti-Human Trafficking and Juvenile Protection Department and the 10 provincial and capital Offices of Anti-Human Trafficking and Juvenile Protection were provided quarterly on-the-job training on case management and follow up in the investigation and referral of cases of trafficking, sexual abuse, exploitation and domestic violence. Police training manuals were updated to incorporate relevant provisions related to the Criminal Procedure Code and the Law on Suppression of Human Trafficking and Sexual Exploitation. Bi-annual national workshops were organized and participated in by representatives from the Anti-Human Trafficking and Juvenile Protection Department and units from 24 capital and provinces in order to exchange experiences and lessons learned in dealing with cases of sexual abuse, sexual exploitation and violence against children and women, and to review laws and investigation techniques. A total of 950 police inspectors, deputy police inspectors, chiefs of police administrative post and deputy chiefs of police administrative post from 10 capitals and provinces received annual advanced trainings on legal procedures and investigation skills and on cooperation with other local authorities. 2,588 judicial police officials were trained at the Police Academy and its five regional police training schools to sensitize them to child sexual abuse, trafficking and sexual exploitation issues, and teach procedures in handling those cases.

119. Until 2009, 54 percent of state social workers at national, municipal and provincial level and 83 percent of others at district level have received basic training courses on social services skills. The training module about the role of social workers in the child justice system was included in the basic training course on social services skills of the Ministry of Social Affairs, Veteran and Youth Rehabilitation. The Ministry of Justice organized a Multi-sectoral Training Workshop on Child Justice in 2009 for 35 trainers comprised of court officials, social workers and members of NGOs.

120. While providing special safety protection and remedy measures for child victims of the offence, the right of the accused to a fair and impartial trial is also guaranteed. Article 38 of the Constitution provides that the prosecution, arrest, or detention of any person shall not be done except in accordance with the law. Confessions obtained by physical or mental coercion shall not be admissible as evidence of guilt. Any case of doubt shall be resolved in favor of the accused. The accused is considered innocent until the court has finally judged on the case. Every citizen shall enjoy the right to defense through judicial recourse. In addition, the Criminal Procedure Code 2007 defines the rules to be followed and strictly applied to clearly determine the existence of a criminal offence and to ensure procedural rights of the accused.

121. In addition to the issuance of the rules governing the search and identification of a child, Decision No. 107 K.C.K.K of 20 December 2007 of the CNCC on Principles for the Protection of the Rights of Child Victims of Trafficking provides that relevant ministries and institutions must develop laws, policies and procedures to ensure that child victims of trafficking who are not Cambodian nationals are not considered as illegal immigrants. As for child victims who do not possess legal documents, competent ministries and institutions shall help them get quick legal status such as provision of temporary visa etc. In this case, the child will not pay or spend on anything in such process of getting legal status.

VII. International assistance and cooperation (art. 10)

122. Children are still the objects of trafficking to Thailand, Vietnam and a number of countries. Women and children in general have been trafficked for the purpose of sexual exploitation while a number of others have been trafficked to be beggars or domestic workers. The extent to which this problem emerges requires close collaboration with other countries, especially countries in the Mekong region. In May 2003, the Royal Government of the Kingdom of Cambodia signed a MoU with the Royal Government of the Kingdom of Thailand on Bilateral Cooperation for Eliminating Trafficking in Children and Women and Assisting Victims of Trafficking. In 2004, the Royal Government of Cambodia established a working group to implement this MoU. In October 2004, the Royal Government of the Kingdom of Cambodia signed a MoU on Cooperation to Combat Human Trafficking in the GMS and set up a working group to implement this MoU in July 2005. The Cambodian working group together with its counterpart of countries in the GMS developed and implemented the First Sub-regional 3-year Action Plan (2004-2007). In December 2007 in Beijing, People's Republic of China, the working group of 6 countries adopted the Second Sub-regional 3-year Action Plan and the ministers of the 6 countries signed the Coordinated Mekong Ministerial Initiative against Trafficking (COMMIT). In October 2005, the Royal Government signed an Agreement with the People's Republic of Vietnam on Bilateral Cooperation for Eliminating Trafficking in Women and Children and Assisting Victims of Trafficking. MoSVY of the Kingdom of Cambodia and Ministry of Police of Vietnam signed an Agreement on Standard Operating Procedures in Identifying and Repatriating Victims of Trafficking in December 2009. In 2010, the AHTJP held a meeting with its Vietnamese counterpart to discuss the protection and border cooperation to maintain security and order along the Cambodia-Vietnam borders, particularly cross-border trafficking, and also reviewed the 5-Year achievements with regard to the implementation of the cooperation agreement to eliminate trafficking in women and children. The department also attended a meeting concerning human trafficking held in Indonesia and Philippines, and a meeting of directors of specialized human trafficking departments during the 18th session of ASEAN in Myanmar. The Ministry of Women's Affairs discussed with Malaysia the draft of the MoU to eliminate human trafficking. The MoU on the Asian Regional Cooperation Project to Prevent Human Trafficking was signed in November in 2003 between the Cambodian Minister of Justice and Australia. The Kingdom of Cambodia also signed an Agreement on Extradition with Laos, Thailand, China and Korea. In addition, other bilateral cooperation was entered into between the national STSLS Committee and the United States of America.

123. After becoming the state party to the Hague Convention on Protection of Children and Cooperation in respect of Inter-Country Adoption in 2007, the Kingdom of Cambodia has been and is cooperating closely with the Permanent Office of the Hague Conference on Private International Law and receiving countries of inter-country adoption to implement the Hague Convention, this Protocol and the Law on Inter-Country Adoption.

124. To coordinate and cooperate in the child justice sector, especially with regard to human trafficking and sexual exploitation, the Royal Government has set up a national working group on the Coordinated Mekong Ministerial Initiative against Trafficking (COMMIT) under the leadership and coordination of Ministry of Women's Affairs. The Advisory Group comprising of development partners has mainly contributed to the oversight and monitoring of child status in the justice system through their network.

125. The Kingdom of Cambodia has been committed, within the international framework, especially the ASEAN framework, as well as the ASEAN – Japan, ASEAN – India, ASEAN – Canada and ASEAN – New Zealand frameworks, to cooperate:

- (a) In combating international terrorism;
- (b) In suppressing trafficking in persons, particularly women and children; and
- (c) In eliminating violence against women in the ASEAN region.

126. In March 2005, the Ministry of Interior sent specialized police officers to Sierra Leone and Liberia to participate in the training-of-trainers course relating to combating acts of human trafficking. In the first quarter of 2010, the Department of Anti-Human Trafficking and Juvenile Protection shared their experiences with regard to suppressing the buying of child prostitutes through the internet. In 2010, an officer of the AHTJP attended as a witness in a trial of an American citizen in Los Angeles, California, USA who was charged with having sex with a girl less than 18 years of age in Cambodia.

VIII. Other legal provisions (art. 11)

127. The Law on Suppression of Human Trafficking and Sexual Exploitation is a special criminal law. This law aims at implementing not just Cambodia's obligations under the Optional Protocol, but also the Protocol to Prevent, Suppress and Punish Trafficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children, supplementing the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime, as well as other instruments and international agreements relating to human trafficking that the Kingdom of Cambodia has ratified or signed. This Law criminalizes many acts as offences relating to human trafficking and sexual exploitation and establishes aggravating circumstances to be imposed on persons who commit the offences against a child.

128. The Kingdom of Cambodia has ratified a number of international laws relating to prevention of child trafficking, child prostitution and child pornography. They are as follows:

- (a) ILO Conventions Nos. 138, 29 and 182;
- (b) The Hague Convention on Protection of Children and Cooperation in respect of Intercountry Adoption;
- (c) The Protocol to Prevent, Suppress and Punish Trafficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children, supplementing the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime.

129. The ratification of all these international instruments has contributed to improving the realization of the rights of the child more than this Optional Protocol provisions.

IX. Conclusion

130. Over the past few years, the Kingdom of Cambodia has successfully achieved fruitful results in the development of its economic and social sectors, including child welfare and child protection in general and in particular, the prevention of child trafficking, child prostitution and child pornography. Presently, there have been remarkable changes in the understanding of prevention of child trafficking, child prostitution and child pornography among the public, and the Royal government is paying attention to prevention through serious measures and law enforcement. Leaders of all levels and various institutions are paying more and more attention and actively contributing to the child protection area; and child protection has been widely put into operation in the society in general. Particularly, campaigns/activities with regard to child protection, prevention of child prostitution and child trafficking have been participated by a wide range of actors in society, namely, from legislative body up to the justice sector and other relevant institutions. New and interesting approaches have been extensively implemented by using national and international resources. As a result, the number of trafficked and sexually abused children has been decreased.

131. While achieving the above results, the Kingdom of Cambodia still faces some challenges that require further and greater efforts in developing its economic and social sectors, especially in the child welfare area, with focus on:

- (a) Promoting cooperation among law enforcement and judicial institutions and social service sectors;
- (b) Continuing to raise awareness on the laws, law enforcement, crime prevention and social problems;
- (c) Continuing to uphold the responsibilities of the competent institutions, civil society organizations, community and family to manage, protect and educate children;
- (d) Creating joint programmes to prevent and address problems concerning child trafficking, child prostitution, and child pornography while implementing socio-economic development programmes;
- (e) Increasing investment in researches, collection, management and analysis of data concerning children;

- (f) Identifying offences and accelerating the investigation, prosecution and punishment of perpetrators who trafficked children, in accordance with the law;
- (g) Further strengthening the roles, duties, leadership and ownership of the STSLS;
- (h) Adopting the Second 5-year National Plan of Action against Human Trafficking and Sexual Exploitation, the soonest, and
- (i) Continuing good cooperation with development partners, civil society and international organizations.
